Public Building Bill Before House

REDS RIOT IN MANY PARTS OF GERMANY

"We Want Work and Bread," Is Chorus on Streets of Berlin

CRISIS IN REICHSTAG

Bruening Appears Victor When Two Groups Fail to Join Opposition

Plauen, Germany.—(AP)—Several police men and civilians were injured during the night when 6,000 "hunger marchers" rioted, smashing windows and threatening raids on provision stores. The demonstration was broken up with considerable difficulty.

Breslau, Germany.—(AP)—Two score rifles, nearly a hundred revolvers and a sizeable arsenal of other weapons were in the hands of 321 Fascists arrested yesterday at the frontier town of Jaeschowitz. All but four were released later.

Herr von Oelffen, owner of the house in which the arrests were made, told the police today that the prisoners had been given refuge on his estate when they told him they feared for their lives in a Communist revolt.

Berlin.—(AP)—Communist disorders in various parts of Germany which already have resulted in two deaths, were in full swing in Berlin this afternoon in continuation of unemployment demonstrations.

A tremendous chorus of "we want work and bread" and "we are starving" was heard at a demonstration of unemployed at Busch circus, held under the auspices of the Communist party.

The demonstrators afterwards marched toward the northeastern working class suburbs refusing to dissolve at the summons of the police who had their hands full in subduing the turbulent crowd.

Rocks were thrown at the police who wielded their clubs vigorously and fired in the air to keep their assailants at bay.

Shopkeepers along the route of the march hurriedly lowered their shutters but a number of vegetable market stalls were plundered.

Some of the rioters stopped to give battle as the police drove the mob through the streets but only 10 were arrested.

At police headquarters the prisoners were herded together for questioning while reinforcements went out to prevent the disorders from spreading.

SUPPORT FOR BRUENING

Two developments in the Reichstag today relieved in some measure the tension resulting from expectations that the opposition might muster enough strength to interfere with Chancellor Bruening's drastic measures of financial reform.

At the outset of the session, which began at noon, a spokesman for the Social Democrats gave virtual assurance that his party would decline to join the opposition and leaders of the People's Party, who had certain reservations concerning some features of the Bruening program, announced that they also would support the government's stand.

Communist rioting over Germany last night, in which two persons were killed, many injured, and upwards of 150 arrested injected an ominous note into the political atmosphere today as the Reichstag assembled for a momentous debate.

The subjects for discussion are the Dietrich 1931 budget, presented the Reichstag yesterday and Nationalist and Fascist motions to repeal the finance reform measures made laws Tuesday by decree of President von Hindenburg.

BREAK TRANQUILITY

Until reports of riots outside Berlin reached here there was widespread feeling of a relief at the peaceful tone of yesterday's Reichstag opening after the October adjournment. There were virtually no arrests here last night but in Leipzig nine Communists were injured in a clash with police in the course of a "hunger march." One of the injured died.

In Hamburg a mob stabbed one policeman to death and wounded two others with knives.

Archbishop Is Welcomed By Governor

Milwaukee.—(AP)—Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch, newly installed head of the Milwaukee Catholic diocese replacing the late Archbishop Sebastian Messmer, last night was officially welcomed to Wisconsin by Gov. Walter J. Kohler, Mayor Daniel Hoan and other important citizens in exercises at the auditorium.

Nearly 6,000 persons attended. The ceremonies were broadcast through a chain of state stations. The audience, composed of all creeds, heard six addresses of welcome from Archbishop Stritch. Each speaker made a plea for religious tolerance and a rebirth of the Christian spirit throughout America.

Characterizing the welcome as not a "shallow tribute to a personality, but a realization of the constructive influence of the work of the church upon the community," Archbishop Stritch said the sentiments manifested encouraged him to plunge into the work before him.

Discussing the modern age, he said in part:

"We have witnessed the cataclysm of the world war, with displays of hatred undreamed of. It is no wonder the world has stood aghast at the new life or that men have lost their mental balance.

"In the disregard for the past, we find an intellectual individualism springing up in the philosophy of the day. To banish God is to banish morality and all those values upon which civilization can safely rest."

Governor Kohler spoke of the contributions of the Catholic church and its representatives in the history of the state. "Wisconsin above all else," he said, "your life in Wisconsin will be filled with much happiness."

RIFT WIDENS ON SEED LOAN FUND FOR FARMS

Washington.—(AP)—A rift in the house agriculture committee widened today in the consideration of proposals to authorize funds for loans to farmers for seed, fertilizer and feed to rehabilitate the drought stricken areas.

Dr. C. W. Warburton, secretary of the federal drought relief committee, testified in favor of the $25,000,000 fund, as proposed in a resolution by Chairman Hagen of the committee.

Representative Aswell of Louisiana, ranking minority member, charged Warburton "controlled Secretary Hyde on seed and fertilizer loan matters. He declared Warburton had arbitrarily placed the relief figure at $25,000,000 when, he said, state drought committees had estimated $60,000,000 was needed.

The witness rejoined that Aswell "pays me a great compliment when he says I control Secretary Hyde, for you men know Secretary Hyde is controlled by no one."

BEGIN PICKING JURORS FOR SHEPARD'S TRIAL

Kansas City, Kas.—(AP)—Trial of Major Charles Shepard, 59-year-old army medical officer, charged with the posthumous murder of his second wife, got under way in a crowded federal court here today.

Selection of a jury was begun immediately after defense counsel waived formal arraignment and entered a plea of not guilty.

Miss Grace Brandon, 22, stenographer, of San Antonio, Texas, one of the government's chief witnesses, did not appear.

The prosecution alleges the elderly army officer's love affair with the girl provided the motive for the asserted poisoning of Mrs. Zenana Shepard at Fort Riley, Kas., in June, 1929.

Eckener Gives Theory On Cause Of R-101 Disaster

London.—(AP)—Dr. Hugo Eckener, master of the Graf Zeppelin and the world's foremost lighter-than-air craft expert, today told the British board of inquiry into the loss of the R-101 in northern France in October what he believed were the reasons for the disaster.

QUICK ACTION IS NECESSARY, HOOVER SAYS

President Sends Supplemental Estimate to Congress With Plea for Vote

Washington.—(AP)—President Hoover today transmitted to congress a supplemental estimate of $150,000,000 for public building construction and Chairman Woods of the house appropriations committee immediately introduced a bill to authorize the expenditure.

"I have the honor to transmit herewith for the consideration of congress an estimate of appropriations for the fiscal year 1931, amounting to $150,000,000 for an emergency construction fund to enable the chief executive to accelerate the construction projects already authorized by law so as to insure employment.

"In my annual message to the congress, I requested that an appropriation of from $100,000,000 to $150,000,000 be granted for this purpose and this estimate is in furtherance of that request. As I stated in that message, the application of this money to work already authorized by the congress not only limits its application to work already directed by congress but assures its use in directions, the economic importance of which has already been determined by congress.

WOULD AVOID DELAYS

"This plan also avoids the long delays incident to selections of new projects by congress and the further long delays in technical preparation which new projects would require, both of which would render such action of no purpose in emergency relief of unemployment.

"I suggested in my message that the allocation of the monies between the different authorized projects should be made upon recommendation of a committee of the cabinet. Such a committee should comprise the secretaries of the treasury, war, navy, commerce and agriculture, and may be established in the terms of the appropriation or appointed by me.

"The test of the value of such relief is the ability to pay wages between now and the end of the fiscal year and I therefore urge that this estimate be given early consideration.

"The details concerning these estimates are set forth in the letter of the director of the bureau of the budget, transmitted herewith."

NEW TARIFF MEMBERS TO FACE COMMITTEE

Washington.—(AP)—The senate finance committee decided today to examine all six members of the new tariff commission Saturday.

SUNDAY MOVIES BACK BUT EACH SHOW WILL OPEN WITH PRAYER

Mattson, Ill.—(AP)—Sunday movies will return to Mattson next Sunday, but each show will be opened with a prayer.

Mayor S. A. Hughart, 44 years a minister, became mayor two years ago and with his Bible holding equal place on his desk with the city book of ordinances, started a strict enforcement administration. One of the chief animosities was Sunday movies.

Unemployment relief and Christian charity necessities weakened his opposition and upon a city council motion Mayor Hughart agreed to Sunday opening to "further the cause of charity."

The Elks lodge urged the Sunday shows to raise funds for charitable purposes. The mayor bound the Elks to an agreement to precede the shows with a prayer.

Armed Trio Liberates 6 Insane Prisoners After Overpowering 4 Employees

Beacon, N. Y.—(AP)—Three men, armed with guns invaded Mattawan State Hospital for the Criminal Insane early today, overpowered four employees and liberated six inmates.

The leader of the gang who was recognized as a former inmate by hospital attendants, who said he was William Nelson of New York. The six who were liberated were: Harry Gordon, 38, Rochester; Frank Danberkeylen, 31, New York; Joseph Kaylor, 35, the Bronx; John S. Bangill, 22, New York; John Biggins, 30, Brooklyn, and Anthony A. Elloy, 44, Brooklyn.

Dr. Raymond F. C. Kieb, superintendent, said the three men entered the hospital grounds through the rear yard where they encountered Patrick McGrath, the night watchman, and compelled him to accompany them.

In the kitchen they came upon Clifford Cooper, night cook. Forcing him to join them, they continued through the building toward the front where they picked up Joseph Brown, the roundsman. Then they herded their prisoners into the front office where Samuel Kane, the night office man, was on duty.

While one of them guarded their prisoners the other two went to the front dormitory where the six men were in bed. The six apparently were watching for them. Dr. Kieb said, for as soon as the intruders appeared they sprang up from their cots and ran out, two of them left clad only in night attire. They drove away in two automobiles.

Dr. Kieb said the escape would not have been possible had it not been for Nelson's knowledge of the hospital routine. He knew where to find the various employees and how to surprise them one at a time.

The superintendent said those who escaped were not known as dangerous, but were suffering from mental diseases which manifest themselves in extreme cunning.

2 YOUNG BROTHERS KILLED ON HIGHWAY

Found Dead Near New Lisbon—Death Car Driver Fails to Stop

New Lisbon.—(AP)—Two young brothers, on their way home from school yesterday, were killed by an automobile whose driver did not stop, as they walked along N. S. Highway 12 near here. Gerald, 7, and Howard, 11, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Mortenson, are the dead boys.

Their bodies were discovered about a quarter of a mile from the city limits on Highway 12 by an older brother, Robert, 14, who followed them home from school. Robert called his father to the scene without knowing the victims were his brothers.

Examination of the highway revealed that the automobile had swerved sharply across the road, striking the boys from the front and hurling their bodies about 35 feet into the ditch. The heads of both were crushed and one of Gerald's arms was fractured.

Police Chief Arthur Rabuck notified authorities in all surrounding cities to be on the lookout for the machine but said today no trace of the car had been found. Corner Ray Spharo and Sheriff E. H. Hempleman of Mauston were expected to conduct separate investigations.

Chief Rabuck said he would question the conductor of a Milwaukee road train which had passed the scene of the accident at about the time it occurred. The conductor declared he saw an automobile going west on the highway and that the car was moving faster than the train.

TEXAN NOMINATED TO PHILIPPINES POST

Washington.—(AP)—President Hoover today nominated George C. Butte of Austin, Texas, to be vice governor of the Philippine islands. Butte has been special assistant to the attorney general since 1928.

He was a Republican candidate for governor of Texas in 1924, and in 1925 was appointed attorney general of Porto Rico. He was acting governor of Porto Rico three times during 1926 and 1927.

Airship Merchant Marine Urged For United States

Washington.—(AP)—An American "airship merchant marine" was advocated today by the national advisory committee for aeronautics.

Citing the "remarkable performance" of the Graf Zeppelin, the committee in its annual report urged support for the navy's airship program, which calls for craft considerably larger than the German ship.

The values of airships, the committee said, "should be developed thoroughly until they are fully demonstrated," and "airship lines should be established on a basis that will give to the United States and airship merchant marine."

DAVIS FREED ON CHARGE OF BANK ROBBERY

Arkansas Man Not Implicated in Nichols Case, Jury Finds

W. P. Davis, Arkansas, was acquitted by a jury in municipal court last night of a charge of robbing the State bank at Nichols on Sept. 10. The jury retired shortly before 6 o'clock and immediately went to dinner. It returned shortly after 7 o'clock and a few minutes after 8 o'clock a verdict was reached.

The tall Arkansian, who has been confident of acquittal ever since his arrest, took the verdict of not guilty in a calm manner. He thanked each member of the jury, shaking hands with them, and then thanked his attorneys, John Morgan and Sarto Balliet. Morgan was appointed to defend Davis.

Trial of the case opened in municipal court last Friday afternoon. The state's case was based on testimony of Frank Manasso, who lives on a farm near Niagara, Wis., and an identification of Davis by Jacob Hahn, cashier of the bank. Manasso claimed Davis stopped at his farm on the day of the robbery and boasted of robbing the bank. Manasso said Davis displayed a roll of bills and a gun and advised Manasso to watch the papers for stories of the robbery. Hahn was positive Davis was the man who robbed the bank.

The defense was based on an alibi established by four witnesses from Brighton and Iron Mountain, Mich. One of these witnesses, Roy Winters, Iron Mountain, now faces charges of perjury as a result of his testimony. Winters insisted he had met Davis and Howard Ballard in Iron Mountain on Sept. 10, the day of the robbery.

STORY IS SHAKEN

Winters claimed he was certain of the date because that was his son's birthday. He repeated his testimony later and when confronted by a birth certificate, showing his son had been born Sept. 27, he merely said he must have been mistaken.

The court, on the demand of District Attorney Stanley A. Stoll, ordered Winters' arrest. Yesterday afternoon Winters was arraigned in municipal court and preliminary hearing of the case was set for Jan. 2. He also furnished a bond of $500.

The other witnesses who established an alibi for Davis were Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ballard, at whose home he had been boarding, and Mrs. Nettie Fraley, a sister of Mrs. Ballard. They all said Davis was in Iron Mountain on the day of the robbery.

In his plea to the jury Mr. Morgan dwelt on the recent trial here of Larry Lawrence and E. H. Stewart, two Chicago collectors, who had been charged with the robbery of the Bank of Black Creek. He pointed out that identification of these men was apparently made positive by several witnesses, but that they were exonerated when the robber confessed at Minneapolis. He said no man, who faced a gun, could calmly inspect the robber and then later be positive of identification.

After the completion of the trial last night Davis returned to Iron Mountain with the Ballards.

WOULDBE ASSASSIN MAY ENTER ASYLUM

Madrid.—(AP)—Authorities here are investigating the shooting at Premier General Berenguer yesterday by Joaquin Lizaso, former newspaper reporter, but are inclined to charge the offense to a mental aberration of the assassin.

He is being held in Madrid's "model jail" while police seek to determine if he really meant harm to the premier, who was not hit, or if he only meant to make a "bloodless demonstration," as he has said.

BULLETIN

Paris.—(AP)—The Tardieu government was defeated on a vote of confidence today.

The official check disclosed that the government had fallen by four votes. The vote was 140 to 145. The vote was based principally on internal and financial policies.

The defeat of the government on the question of confidence in either the senate or chamber is generally followed by the ministry's resignation.

Last Of Gang Put Behind Prison Bars

Kenosha.—(AP)—The last of the Hironymous gang which Detective Sergeant Thomas McMahon said robbed 107 places in northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin last summer and fall, was sentenced to virtual life imprisonment here today.

Joe Hironymous, 52, father of four of the ten members of the gang and related to others, was sentenced to from 15 to 25 years in the state prison.

He was sentenced for the robbery of a filling station 18 miles west of here. All the other nine members of the gang are now serving time in the Illinois State prison at Joliet, having been convicted for various Illinois robberies.

Following Hironymous' dramatic conviction on the testimony of an 18-year-old girl, surprise witness, District Attorney Morris Barnett announced he would issue four warrants charging as many persons with perjury.

He said the girl, Winnie Reynolds, sweetheart of Roy Hironymous, cousin of Joe, had disproved the defendant's alibi that he had been at home "dead drunk" the night of the filling station robbery. She was placed on the stand as the last state rebuttal witness. She testified she attended a party at the Hironymous home, where Hironymous had claimed he became drunk. He was not there, she said.

The witnesses charged by the district attorney with perjuring themselves, had testified they attended the party and saw Hironymous there. Miss Reynolds testified she met one of them, a girl, downtown the night of the party, and that she did not attend the party.

GREENVILLE MAN KILLED

Deer Hunters in Wreck as They Return Home from Northern Woods

Two men were killed, two others were seriously hurt, and three women and a man were less seriously injured in two automobile accidents in this vicinity last night.

The dead: Henry Thiel, 65, town of Greenville.

Jack Faubel, 70, Oklaheba Lake. The injured: Roy Neil, 35, 793 Eleventh-ave, Wauwatosa, in serious condition with fractured skull and bruises about the head and body.

George Mavis, 32, 1325 N. Onelida-st, several ribs on right side broken and possible internal injuries.

Mrs. Mavis, 33, bruises and cuts. Martin Brudner, Luthurst, bruises and cuts.

Mrs. Theima Krueger, 39, route 2, Appleton, bruises and cuts. Miss Doris Ferry, 13, Marion, bruises and cuts.

Thiel was killed and Mavis, Mrs. Krueger and Brudner were hurt in an accident on Highway 76, about a mile east of Greenville, about 6:30 last night.

TWO CARS COLLIDE

Mrs. Krueger, a daughter of Mr. Thiel, was going east on Highway 76 with her father, who was driving, when their car and a machine driven by G. Lyons, Shakopee, collided. The pavement was slippery and both cars skidded. A wheel was broken from the Lyons car. The occupants of the two cars alighted and when Thiel noticed a third car approaching he stood in the road and attempted to flag it, intending to caution the driver to slow down.

This car was driven by Mavis, who was accompanied by his wife, Brudner and John M. Kroll of Shawano. Mavis' car struck Thiel and he was thrown more than 20 feet into the ditch. Mavis' car then went into the ditch and turned over. Thiel was killed instantly.

Later Mavis told the authorities that he saw the party standing in the road and attempted to turn into the ditch to avoid striking them. He told officers he was traveling about 40 miles an hour.

The accident is being investigated by Sheriff John Lappen and Assistant District Attorney Oscar J. Schmege.

Faubel was killed and Neil was hurt when the car they were driving south on Highway 26 between Clintonville and Marion, and a machine driven by Miss Ferry, collided.

RETURNING FROM HUNT

Neil was driving the car. Chris Brucker, 383 Clark-st, Wauwatosa, was the third passenger. The three men were returning to their homes after hunting deer in the vicinity of Conover, Wis. The accident happened when Neil turned his car to the right side of the road to pass a wagon loaded with poles. The wagon was driven by Fred Zitlow, a farmer living between Marion and Clintonville. Both cars were demolished.

Faubel's body was taken to an undertaking parlor at Marion. It was to be removed to his home at Wauwatosa Thursday. Neil was rushed to St. Elizabeth hospital, Appleton, in an ambulance. Miss Ferry was treated by a doctor at Marion and then taken to her home.

An inquest was held at Marion this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Mavis and Mrs. Krueger also are at St. Elizabeth hospital. Brudner was taken to the hospital, but was released after his injuries were treated.

Thiel is survived by three daughters, Mrs. William Wirthuhn, Cicero; Mrs. Theima Krueger, Greenville; Mrs. Lester Riesenwaber, Ellington; four sons, Harry and Lester of Greenville, Leonard of Marshall, Minn., and Dewey of Center; one brother, John Seymour; three sisters, Mrs. Annie Seiberlich and Mrs. Mary Rietz, Appleton; and Mrs. Rose Urban, Melvin, Kas.; and 19 grandchildren.

The funeral will be held at 1:45 Sunday afternoon from the home on route 2, Greenville, with services at 2 o'clock at the Evangelical church at Greenville. The Rev. W. F. Berg of Greenville will be in charge of the services, and burial will be in the Greenville town cemetery. The body will be taken from the Wichmann funeral home to the fruit Friday afternoon.

Budget Bill Provides For Projects In Wisconsin

RAISES MONEY FOR BUILDINGS TO $60,000,000

$5,000,000 Increase Also Proposed for Rivers, Harbors Work

BY RUBY A. BLACK
Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent

Washington—Many estimates for federal expenditures on Wisconsin projects are included in the budget for the fiscal year 1932, beginning next July 1, submitted to congress by the president today.

In addition to the estimates of appropriations needed for special Wisconsin projects, the estimates for general work of the government contain many increases in appropriations which will benefit the Badger state.

Wisconsin will benefit from the increase in the public buildings fund to $60,000,000 from $48,000,000, this increase making possible the construction of more post office and other federal buildings in Wisconsin.

The continuation of the $50,000,000 increase in the federal road aid appropriations, bringing the total to $125,000,000 as during the present year, gives Wisconsin 66 2-3 per cent more federal aid for roadbuilding than in years prior to the present.

Wisconsin will also benefit from the increase to $60,000,000 from $55,000,000 in the appropriations asked for rivers and harbors work.

HERE ARE ESTIMATES

Estimates of funds to be used during the fiscal year 1932 on Wisconsin projects or on work of special interest to Wisconsin industries include:

$208,810 for Bureau of Daily Industry, United States, department of Agriculture, an increase of over $80,000 over this year's appropriation.

$21,405,620 for the Forest service, an increase of over a million and a half dollars over this year's appropriation, including $675,000 for experiment at the Forest Products Laboratory at Madison, an increase of $40,000 for this purpose, and $800,000 for construction of the new building for the laboratory at Madison, which continues the $100,000 already appropriated for the structure.

$197,780 for the Upper Mississippi Wild Life Refuge in Wisconsin and Minnesota.

$25,000 for buildings, boats, equipment, etc., for the upper Mississippi drainage.

Funds necessary to complete the purchase of site and construction of the $50,000 fish cultural sub-station in Wisconsin.

$15,000 for enforcement of the new law regulating interstate commerce in black bass.

$50,000 for enforcing the new law to prevent fraudulent practices in the marketing of perishable agricultural commodities, of special interest to Wisconsin potato, vegetable, and fruit growers.

$1,000 to repair buildings at the Tomah Indian school damaged in a storm.

$1,200 to repair the boys' dormitory and replace the clothing destroyed by a fire in the Lan du Flambeau Indian school.

$58,650 for maintenance of the Indian school at Hayward an increase of $5,850 over this year's appropriations, to take care of more pupils, $10,000 for an employees' cottage at this school, $40,000 for an auditorium and gymnasium, including equipment, and $7,650 for a home economics building, including equipment—a total of $116,150 for the school, as against only $60,800 appropriated for it for the current fiscal year.

$80,000 for the Hayward Indian hospital, as against $22,000 this year.

$25,000 for the new Tomah Indian hospital.

$72,800 out of tribal funds for various Wisconsin Indian projects, including $2,000 for administration and services at Lac du Flambeau, $70,800 at Keshena for salaries and various expenses, as against $57,000 for the purpose this year.

MAN WINS DIVORCE FROM APPLETON WOMAN

Omond Hildahl, 39 Myrtle-st, Oshkosh, was granted an absolute divorce in county court at Oshkosh yesterday from his wife, Mrs. Bertha Hildahl, Appleton. The action was not contested by Mrs. Hildahl. The divorce was granted when it was brought out that they had voluntarily separated nine years ago. The plaintiff testified he married Mrs. Hildahl Oct. 25, 1919, and has not seen his wife since their separation.

HOSE, SHOVEL APPEAR ONCE MORE AT DUMP

The hose and shovel again took up the pursuit of the elusive Superior-stump fire Wednesday. Two street department workers are shoveling along the roadway, where the fire seems to be concentrated, and large holes are being kept filled with water. The entire section washed down by the fire department several weeks ago has apparently turned its back on fire, but no one can determine how much of the area near the roadway is now burning.

MELLON SEES NO HOPE FOR REDUCED TAX

Contrasts Change in Conditions Since Cut Was First Established

Washington—(AP)—It looks more than ever as though Mr. Taxpayer will have to pay 1 per cent more on this year's income than on the last.

Secretary Mellon sees it that way. His annual report, addressed today to congress, predicted a $180,000,000 deficit when the fiscal year ends next June.

While making no recommendation, the treasury head recalled pointing out a year ago that continuance of the 1 per cent reduction then made would depend on the revenue prospects this month. These now "indicate that the temporary decrease cannot be continued during the current year."

Contrasting with the deficit forecast, the 1930 fiscal year surplus was $132,782,215. Every bit went toward retirement of the public debt, which stood at $16,185,208,293 when the year closed.

Calculations on the future led to a request for legislation making possible refunding operations, which would aim at putting all or part of the national debt on a lower interest rate basis if money conditions justify. Mellon asked that the loan law be amended with the object of granting the treasury "complete freedom in determining the character of securities to be issued" in any refunding, and to allow eight billion dollars in new bond issues to be put out as a refunding operation, which would retire like amounts of older debt.

Further, his report repeated a recommendation that congress free income taxpayers who buy federal securities from liability for the payment of income tax on the realization from such investments. That would give national paper the same exemption status as that now held by state and municipal borrowings.

The secretary forecast some changes in the form of payment hitherto received from foreign governments by the United States as a result of war loans, saying:

"It is reasonably certain that the December interest payments on account of foreign debts will be paid in cash, and it is quite possible that this may be equally true in June. It is impossible to forecast what method of payment foreign debtors may elect, though it is entirely possible that part of the interest payments will be made in securities."

If the deficit materializes, it will be the first time a surplus has been missed since 1919. Mellon looks to 1932 to bring back a favorable balance, to the extent of $30,600,000. The estimates set the income tax

FEW MEN SEEK LODGING AT CITY JAIL, SAYS CHIEF PRIM

Although the Appleton police department has released slightly from its established policy of refusing a night's lodging to "bums" there has been no great increase in the number of men who apply nightly at the station for help according to Police Chief George T. Prim.

More than a year ago Chief Prim established the new policy after a survey showed that "knights of the road" were making a practice of coming to Appleton because it was easy to obtain a night's lodging and breakfast at the city jail. Chief Prim said these habitual bums were a nuisance because they not only succeeded in securing a part of their living from the city but they infested the streets begging from the citizens.

The police began to turn away applicants for a night's lodging and soon the number of men seeking aid was reduced considerably.

"This policy," Chief Prim said, "tax reduction item, the principal reductions in estimated receipts are as follows: income tax $190,000,000 and customs $100,000,000."

GEIGER DECISION IN WATER BATTLE AGAIN SUSTAINED

Worth of Services to User
Most Important Factor, Court Finds

Refusing to recognize the major premise on which the former Appleton Water Work company bases its hydrant rental claim against the city of Appleton, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the second time upheld the decision of Judge Frederick Geiger of Milwaukee. The federal court opinion was received this week by Alfred O. Bosser, city attorney.

The court of appeals decreed that the worth of the services to the user was a more important factor than that claimed by the appellant, which took the position that compensation for water furnished to a city by a public utility must be determined on the basis of a fair return on the capital actually and necessarily invested in the utility plant. The decree pointed out three exceptions to the rule that a utility is entitled to such compensation for services rendered as will produce a fair return on the capital investment: unwarranted investment, inadequate service, or a consuming public too small to make complete use of the service offered.

The local case is considered as an instance of inadequate service.

The conclusions drawn by the court were that the water company furnished sufficient water for flushing sewers, etc., that the pressure maintained by the company for fire protection was decidedly inadequate, that such inadequacy was largely due to the utility's failure to install adequate pumps, and that if the value of the services rendered by the utility is to be measured by the worth for fire protection to the users, the utility was adequately compensated by the city for the services rendered.

INVOLVES $200,000

The water case, which has been before the railroad commission at least twice, in the Wisconsin Supreme court once, and before the federal court of appeals twice, involves about $200,000, including accumulative interest since the beginning of the case way back in 1901. The water company is attempting to collect for hydrant rental during a period when the city claims the water works did not supply water in the amount and of the pressure required for the adequate fire protection of Appleton. The city paid the water works $37,488.95 for hydrant rental for the period Nov. 1, 1904 to Dec. 7, 1910, and for the period Dec. 7, 1910 to Nov. 30, 1911 gave the water works credit on its taxes in the sum of $10,554.71. The water works was purchased by the city in 1911.

At the expiration of a franchise in 1901, the city and the water company, unable to agree upon terms of a new franchise, attempted to adjust proposed franchise provisions. In a number of differences respecting 1907, following the action of the Public Utilities Act of Wisconsin, the city took steps to acquire by purchase the water company property, under the provisions of the new act. However, the voters of the city voted against the purchase of the water plant. The city then applied to the Wisconsin commission for an order requiring the utility to render its service. Shortly after the city again sought to acquire the water company, and the Wisconsin commission fixed the amount the city was to pay for it at $255,000.

2 HOMES QUARANTINED BY CITY IN OCTOBER

Only two homes were quarantined during October, and only 20 placarded, according to the monthly report of Dr. F. P. Dohearty, city physician, and Theodore Sanders, deputy health officer. One quarantine was for diphtheria and one for infantile paralysis. Twenty-seven homes were placarded for chicken pox, two for measles, and one for whooping cough. Seven cases of tuberculosis were reported.

Mr. Sanders released 25 homes, investigated 17 complaints, inspected 13 dairies, and tested 47 samples of milk and cream.

Dr. Dohearty issued 51 birth, 28 death and 16 marriage certificates, and 40 burial permits. He made 150 telephone calls and 115 calls.

FAMOUS PIANIST TOURS COUNTRY IN PRIVATE PULLMAN

Paderewski Doesn't Patronize
Hotels or Restaurants
When He Travels

Signature collectors of curious persons intent upon a word with the great Paderewski, when he comes to Appleton to play next Tuesday evening, had better be forewarned that the famous pianist does not patronize hotels or restaurants.

"The Superb," de lux private car of the Pullman company is Paderewski's home sometimes for six months at a stretch. Whenever news comes that the pianist is returning to the United States, this car is overhauled, manuevered and redecorated inside and out. Unlike most musicians, he does not favor hotels when he is on tour. When he has played his last encore and made his last bow in each town, he prefers to return to his own friends—even if that friends is only an electric heater on a railroad train.

The car has as nearly as possible the appointments of a home—his piano, his own books, comfortable chairs and attractive hangings. It has its own lighting and heating system so that it can be side-tracked without losing any comforts. It is connected by telephone with each city where Paderewski stops for a concert. It has a special chef and accommodations for the pianist's entourage of eight people.

The pianist travels in a private car as a matter of convenience. It saves him the trouble of having to get up at an early hour to catch a morning train, or wait around for a late one following an evening concert. Also, he likes to have his big meal of the day late at night after the concert.

The routine of the car is always the same. Paderewski awakens late in the morning for tea, then goes through an hour of daily exercises. He practices three or four hours a day, but only when the train is standing still. On concert days he retires to his state-room about 5 o'clock to rest and concentrate. He emerges from his retirement dressed for the performance, but never eats before going on the stage.

On evenings when he is not playing, he likes nothing better than to go to a movie. He also likes to play bridge and cribbage. He reads many books on philosophy and biography, and, being a great admirer of the statesman, has an entire collection of Benjamin Franklin's literary works.

Travelling with the artist are Mme. Paderewski, her secretary, Miss Helen Lickie; tour manager, Lawrence Fitzgerald; Eldon Joubert, who looks after the transportation and takes care of the pianos; Marcel, the valet-masseur, two Pullman porters and a special chef.

Tickets for the concert are still on sale at Belling drug store, though the most favorable seats are going at a rapid rate.

1,065 POUND STEER NAMED CHAMPION AT LIVESTOCK EXHIBIT

Shares Honors With Grand Champions Among Farm Youths in Chicago

BY OWEN L. SCOTT
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press
Chicago —(CPA)— Jimmy, 1065-pound champion Aberdeen-angus steer—grand champion among the world's cattle—whose 15 months of existence end shortly after an auction on Thursday, is sharing honors at the International Livestock show today with grand champions among farm youths.

These prize winners, healthiest among 840,000 members of the nation's 4-H clubs, like their club associates find little lure in the city and are not despoiling of the agriculture which they count on following as a life occupation.

Judges found the healthiest girl, flaxen-haired and blue-eyed, to be Marian E. Syndergaard, 15 years old, of Grundyco, Iowa. She does not smoke cigarettes, has never been to a night club and wears flat-heeled shoes. Her score was 93.7.

The prize-winning boy was William E. Bodenhamer, 20 years old, of Johnsonco, Missouri, who scored 93.7. Slightly bowed legs kept him from a higher score. He is five feet 6 1/2 inches tall and weighs 151 pounds. Outdoor life is credited by both of the winners to account for a good measure of their health.

These are champion representatives of a farm club plan that is considered today to be the most significant youth movement in the nation.

45,000 CLUBS
There are over 45,000 clubs, in 43 states of the country, with 840,000 members between the ages of 10 and 12 years. All of them are interested in raising the standards of farming. Thousands entered competitions which culminated in the ninth annual congress of 4-H clubs at the International Livestock show. There were 1400 representatives on hand, many of them with prize-winning exhibits.

President Hoover, who holds honorary chairmanship of the clubs, said of them:

"The work of the 4-H clubs is fundamental. It is bringing about a more economical production of all agricultural crops; it is improving rural homes; it is developing rural leaders, molding character and building citizenship."

Most important, so agricultural authorities say, is the evidence that the organization is stimulating the interest of farm boys and girls in agriculture as a life occupation. As the result of a survey completed among the club memberships by one of the leading mail order houses, it was discovered that 93 per cent of the girls on the farm intend to stay there and that 89 per cent of the boys plan to continue as farmers.

"Modern boys and girls living in the country are more satisfied with their lot than any other young people in the world," the director of the survey concluded.

"Sixteen million dollars is the actual market value of this year's production of the 4-H club members. Sixty-six per cent of the boys have bank accounts, fifty-seven per cent of the girls. The average value of property actually owned by the boys, exclusive of money in the bank is $375. That of the girls is $78."

The federal government in recent years has co-operated in financing the movement among farm youths which has extended from one end of the country to the other with the motto, "My head, to clearer thinking, my heart to greater loyalty, my hands to larger service and my health to better living."

NOTED DANCERS WITH TIPICA ORCHESTRA

Mexican Musical Organization Appears Here Friday Night

The whirlwind dancing of Juan Lucay and Anita, sensational South American dancers with the Tipica orchestra of Mexico, which makes its appearance in Appleton Friday, is well known in this country. The summer resorts of New England, the night clubs of San Francisco and New York, the elite colonies of Santa Barbara and the pleasure places of Nogales have all enjoyed the dancing of this team of South Americans.

While much of their reputation was gained in South America and Mexico, these two artists have added laurels to their stage triumphs on the foremost vaudeville circuits of America. Their excellent dancing is not their sole asset as a stage attraction however, for they are young, vibrant, graceful and goodlooking. Senor Lucay and his charming partner, Anita, are said to have few peers in the realm of Spanish dancing and their presentation of the ever-thrilling tango is reputed to be perfect. Much of their appeal is due to their striking and aristocratic appearance. Senor Lucay, one critic observes, is as captivating in his dancing as was the famous Valentino.

In addition to Lucay and Anita the soloists with the Tipica orchestra include Senora Maria Romero, soprano of the National Opera of Mexico, Jose de Arratia, tenor of the same company, Los Cuatros Mexicanos, famous mariimba band and the male quartet, Los Trovadores del Bajio. The Tipica performance will be given both in the afternoon and evening. School children will be given an opportunity to hear the orchestra at 3 o'clock in the afternoon for a nominal sum.

Iron ore shipments from the 1930 season from the Lake Superior district will total nearly 47,000,000 tons, a decrease over 1929.

LURID CHARGES

The irrepressible Soviet is at it again, this time with the charge that former President Poincare, former Premier Briand of France, Sir Henry Detering, the British-Dutch oil magnate, and Lawrence of Arabia, are all involved in a conspiracy of international proportions to overthrow the Russian government and parcel out its most valuable natural resources among the nations fringing upon its borders. Of all the lurid charges coming from Moscow nothing could be more fantastic. There was a time when such a complaint would have aroused widespread agitation, but European nations are used to wild charges from Russia and have not even dignified these with a denial.

But in fact the Russian leaders show an understanding of mob psychology and are not purposeless in flouting charges of this character. They realize that no drinker can keep up his hilarity long with one cocktail and there is no greater force to weld a people together than the fear of attack. When the iron hand crushes out even mild criticism at home as "counter-revolutionary activity" the need of the day requires a turn at the outside world.

When any people strive for an ideal they lift themselves up into the realms of greater accomplishment. They will withstand hunger, disease, crushing labor and all sorts of misery in order to carry on. But human nature has its limitations and people tire of a heavy load or a swift pace. The last attempt of Soviet leaders to instill the people with the proper spirit was the five-year plan consisting for the most part of a promise that if all the Russian people would deny themselves everything but the right to work, quit grumbling and lagging, at the end of five years the nation would be in a leading and prosperous condition. The propaganda used by Moscow for this purpose was timely, well staged and presented and the plan was given an excellent start among the people. But five years is a long time and the promises made, like New Year's resolutions, were no sooner made than broken. Something else must be supplied to stimulate the people. What better than the presentation of a huge and, of course diabolical plot among capitalist nations to crush Russia, enslave its people and return them to the knout of the old regime.

There really isn't anything very new in this plan. Some features of it are in use in Italy today. All of it has been used at other times by dictators to accomplish their purposes. Napoleon was a past master at it. It served his purposes for nearly 15 years, and when he could not get other nations to attack France he did the attacking as a matter of "defense."

But the careful observer of Russian affairs will read behind charges of this nature and see that all is not going well in the Russian land for he will understand that when dictators have no bread to feed the masses they cook up synthetic stuff to deceive them into believing they are no longer hungry.

BETTER TASTE IN HOUSES

Although small-house architecture in the United States has been marred in recent years by a deplorable lack of taste, the tide is at last beginning to swing the other way, according to the current issue of The American Architect.

The magazine quotes Charles H. Cheney of the American Institute of Architects as authority for the statement that three-fourths of all the buildings erected in the country last year were so ugly and so badly planned that they were liabilities from their inception; but it adds:

"The swing to better designed houses has already started. Buyers have helped tremendously by demanding better design. Builders who have sensed this tendency and build better designed houses find they can sell their products much easier."

It is this last point that is encouraging. A rash of ugly houses anywhere simply indicates that public taste is not cultivated. If it is actually becoming better business to use extra pains and expense to avoid ugliness, our aesthetic sense must be improving.

METHUSELAH'S SUCCESSOR

Zaro Agha, the ancient Turk, who claimed to be 156 years of age at the time he landed in this country last August, and of whom a facetious writer said he must be at least 160 by now, had enough confidence in his own claims to submit himself to an exhaustive medical analysis by prominent New York physicians.

Their report first has to do with the documentary proof of his age which he furnished and which they regarded as "apparently quite authentic." But the physicians claim in spite of the careful examination of this remarkable man that there is no certain way of ascertaining anything more than that he is an old man. Dr. Bassler said, "I have examined fifteen people in age from 90 to 108 years, and none of them showed anything different physically from Zaro."

While nothing in particular presented itself to excite the suspicion of the medical examiners, beyond the claim of age itself, their report indicates a hesitation to accept such age as accurate. Says Dr. Brill, one of the examiners: "If he is of the advanced age that is claimed there is a possibility that in a few isolated instances the processes of senile decay may become static, or static before advancing again, or advance but very slowly. This is opposed to the teachings and beliefs of medicine today, which is, according to the biologic rule of all living things on earth."

To this Dr. Keller, another examiner, added the statement: "It seems incredible that any human being could attain 156 years of age and yet show so few changes in the eyes, having practically perfect sight. He has never worn glasses."

But assuming that Zaro is 156 years of age, the medical fraternity assert they cannot account for the number of years allotted him without a lot of theorizing. Said one of the examiners: "Zaro's long life may be the result of two things: first, that he apparently escaped the ravages of the ordinary diseases of childhood, and second, that an over-functioning of the pituitary gland, which was definitely established, may give Zaro natural immunity to infections." Cannot then the pituitary glands in the rest of us be induced to over-function?

Public interest centers itself in the manner of life of those who live long lives with the hope that by emulation others may get the same results. Zaro has always been a devotee of physical exercise, the principal forms of which have been wrestling and horseback riding. He also has a love for walking and even at the present time takes a two and one-half mile hike every day.

If he is the age claimed for him he furnishes but another example of the tenacity with which human beings cling to their likes and dislikes. He claims never to have been sick until four years ago following a dinner of spaghetti, and the infrequent illnesses to which he has been subjected since he constantly attributes to that particular meal of spaghetti, never forgetting to add that the spaghetti came from Italy. His friends say that perhaps 80 years ago, or maybe it was 140, he fought against some Italian troops and his prejudice against the Italians has never subsided. Hence, the constant reference to the spaghetti with a sly dig at anything Italian.

CARLYLE'S BIRTH

On Dec. 4, 1795, Thomas Carlyle, British essayist, historian and philosopher, was born at Ecclefechan, Scotland.

Following his graduation from Edinburgh University, he tried teaching and the study of law, but found both un congenial. After making the friendship of Edward Irving, Carlyle decided to follow literature as a profession.

With the publishing of his "Life of Schiller" and the "History of Frederick the Great," Carlyle soon won fame for writing literary portraits. His chief work, however, was Sartor Resartus ("The Tailor Done Over"), the title of an old Scottish song. This work is a mixture of the sublime and the grotesque in the author's opinions and philosophies of the world.

Carlyle became lord rector of Edinburgh University. He declined a pension which Disraeli offered him. After his wife's death Carlyle lived quietly in London, devoting himself to literatures and articles. His contribution to literature is summarized as follows:

"Carlyle exercised an unrivaled influence on British literature during the mid-19th century and on the contemporary moral, religious and political beliefs. His critical biographical essays were the first to place the riches of modern German thought before the English-reading world."

THE REVOLT OF THE BABIES. 1—AGAIN WE DEMAND THAT TAMPERING WITH OUR FOOD SHALL CEASE.

For quite a spell now we bimboes have been just letting things ride. Back in the days B. V. we had an uprising which culminated in a demand for Old Doctor Nature's Peerless Baby Food and the junking of the trick stuff a lot of seventy per cent mothers were palming off on us kids. Then came Vitamins, and our attention was so diverted by the business of trying to get all the Vitamins we required, that we permitted our united to become somewhat disorganized and apathetic. Inevitably the enemy seized on the advantage to tamper with our eats some more, and we are now confronted with the grave state of baby affairs exposed in the report of our investigation commission.

Once upon a time we infants were heavily taxed to provide plain unequivocal nostrums for our own discomfiture—colic cures, teething dopes, bowel regulators, indigestion correctives, even cough and cold cures for the brave few households that didn't keep one or another nostrum on hand as an indispensable adjunct in the proper care of the baby. Those were perilous times for us bimboes. Then, to make matters worse, we were generally expected to behave according to Holt. Present day mothers will scarcely appreciate this allusion to Holt, but some of their grandmas may recall the quaint little guidebook for amateur mothers that was furnished by the first baby specialist in America. Being the first and only one of the country, Holt just "pronounced" things thus and so, and there was no one with the temerity to say him neigh. Our commission reports that the survey disclosed two mothers still following Holt's handbook in the care and feeding of the baby—one who refused to give her poor, undernourished, peevish, constipated infant 8 months old any banana because Holt advised against it; the other was in a terrible quandary because her baby was only six months old and the nursery had no stove of the kind Holt always liked in the nursery. This mother could not see how she was to air the nursery without killing the baby.

It is true, we kids get a better break under the modern rules, yes, and now and then even a little banana or some fresh air, but we are still very much at the mercy of the brigands who manage to get a percentage out of altogether too large a share of the bimboes of this nation. We were liberated from bondage to the teething and colic nostrum the big business interests that had long prospered in that line immediately turned their attention to other methods, and thru the subtle but potent agency of propaganda and subsidized scientific "research" they have entrenched themselves more solidly and more profitably than ever, having a stake now in the very food we bimboes eat.

It is hard to raise a baby successfully in any case. We ask only a fair deal. If the drug manufacturers must take a cut out of the sum you pay for our food, we are of the opinion that the government is not nearly so concerned about our welfare as some of the big politicians would have you believe. That's all today. But you watch our smoke. We're going to see what we can do toward lowering the outrageously high cost of babies.

Exhalation Is Relaxation.

Most persons allow the abdomen to come forward when they exhale. I have often noticed this in taking the chest expansion of candidates. Yet it must be obvious that contracting the abdomen means pressing the diaphragm against the lower lungs, so the lungs are squeezed and the air forced out. (W. A. S.)

Answer—The first part of your observation is correct. Many people seem to expand the abdomen or push out the belly when they are exhaling. Let us explain that the belly is the front wall of the abdomen, which is a body cavity. You are wrong in your explanation of natural exhalation. This is, or should be, purely a passive act—the elastic rebound following the inhalation and expansion of the lungs. When you've drawn in a diaphragmful of air, just relax and the air will be expelled by elasticity alone, without any effort on your part. The great elasticity of the chest, the diaphragm and the belly are utilized in Schafer's prone-pressure method of artificial respiration, only here the elastic rebound aids inspiration.

Soft Corns—Maybe Ringworms.

A few years ago you gave a recipe for a solution, I think of salicylic acid or something of the kind. It healed some very annoying tender spots between my toes. (W. A. R.)

Answer—Perhaps the liquid form of the famous Whitfield's ointment for ringworm of the feet ("athlete's itch") is what you used.

Is drainage of benzoic acid; 1 dram of salicylic acid; One ounce of acetone;

Dilute alcohol, enough to make 4 ounces

Paint this on the affected patches of skin once or twice a day. It is excellent also in cases of itching from maceration of the skin where there is excessive sweating of the feet. And a third "indication" for this, or for Whitfield's ointment, is the "dew" itch, "the itch" or "ground itch" which marks the penetration of the skin by the larvae of the bookworm in regions where the soil is polluted with hookworms and people go barefooted.

The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

ABOVE the street hung balconies from which folks leaned and saw, with ease, the Tynmites as they walked below. One little girl cried, "Hey! If you would see a real nice view, come right up here. We'll welcome you. My little brother's down below. He'll gladly show the way."

"Yep! Here I am," a boy cried out. "I heard my little sister shout. Just come in through this doorway. We'll take you up above. Then, from our balcony you'll see some sights, as pretty as can be." "That's fine," exclaimed wee Scouty. "Pretty sights are what I love."

So very shortly they stood out upon the porch and gazed about. "It seems that we could jump right to the porches 'cross the way," said Clowny. "But, perhaps we'd slip and promptly take a downward trip. There's no use taking chances, so right on your porch we'll stay."

The Tynmites told the little girl that they were having quite a whirl at seeing things in foreign lands. "Oh, see, it's heaps of fun," said Copy. "And there's more to see. That's why we're rushed as we can be."

They left the girl, but thanked her first, for all that she had done.

They reached the end of this small street and ran into another treat. A pretty bit of music floated softly through the air. "Oh, look!" cried Carpy. "I can see a dancer. She looks good to me. Let's ask her if she'll do a dance. I do not think she'll care."

They all cheered little Carpy's hunch. The girl was willing that the bunch just sit around and watch her while she danced in fancy-attire. A man near played a tambourine. It really was a pretty scene and when the dance was over all the bunch began to smile.

Sinclair Lewis, who is learning to say "thank you" in Swedish, is unaware, perhaps, that "okay" would be understood perfectly.

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington — The crack yachtsman of the United States senate is Jesse H. Metcalf of Rhode Island—the man who defeated former Senator Peter Gerry at the polls on November 4.

But he frankly admits that he is a "fair weather sailor." He believes in taking no chances. If weather threatens, he loses no time in finding a harbor, or a cove for his trim little craft, the "Felicity." There he remains until everything is calm.

But the senator says there can be no doubting that the sea has a tremendous appeal for him.

He knows the Narragansett like a book. No stranger to the pilot's room, he can handle the "Felicity" with as much skill as any member of the crew.

In fog and blustery weather, he always may be found at his station in the control room. And there he fingers with charts and directs his ship's course until a haven is reached.

LIVE ON SHIP

The "Felicity" is a familiar craft to Washington. Down on the Potomac it is seen frequently riding easily at its moorings. During hot weather, the Metcalfs quit their apartment and take up residence aboard ship.

It is an annual event. For the best part of every summer they make their home on the comfortable and splendidly equipped boat. Their friends are entertained there. Five or six people in addition to members of the crew are easily cared for.

If the night is uncomfortably warm, the "Felicity" lifts anchor and slips down the river to a spot removed from the city. There, safe from heat and mosquitos, the Metcalfs spend the night, returning in the morning in time for the senator to get back to his duties at the capitol.

For more than 30 years now Senator Metcalf has turned to the sea for recreation. He has owned boats of all sizes and descriptions. The "Felicity" has been flying his colors since shortly after the world war.

NO RACING

He had a steam yacht during the war, but the government needed a craft of this type, and the senator surrendered it for service.

The "Felicity" is 123 feet long and draws from five to six feet of water. It is capable of making 11 knots per hour, although it is rare that her skipper calls for such speed.

For speed holds no fascination for him. He has never raced the "Felicity" against another boat. There's a beautiful silver cup aboard, but it is not a trophy. It was presented to the commander of the "Felicity" in appreciation of his yacht towing a disabled steam yacht to a place of safety.

In his office on the hill, directly back of his desk, there hangs a reproduction of an old maritime map of waters around Rhode Island. In the right hand corner of the map is a picture of a trim little yacht heading straight for Block Island. The prow is cutting a neat path in the sea—a thin spray is being kicked up as the craft speeds merrily on—the "Felicity," explains the senator, "heading home after a lazy cruise."

Seen And Heard In New York

BY RICHARD MASSOCK

New York—Suburban life is not so hectic, commuting friends say, now that winter has blown the last week-end guest back to his steam-heated apartment.

Life as lived in the purlieus of Manhattan during the past summer is best illustrated by a story that is none the less effective by being a bit tardy.

There was a guest of honor at this party and he had been conveyed to the country in the car of another couple. Along about midnight his conveyors thought it best to start the long drive back to town.

So they took the honored guest by an elbow and started to escort him to the limo.

"Oh, no," he said, "I'm staying right here."

His two friends insisted that it was time to go home. Finally a third guest was called upon and the trio piloted the guest of honor to the waiting motor. He made one last vehement protest, but they tumbled him into the rumble seat.

Presently the host missed his guest of honor.

"Where," he said, "is Algernon?" "Oh, him?" spoke up the one who had helped the unwilling Algy into the rumble seat.

"We sent him home with the Melbourns. He didn't want to go, but we got him off all right."

"What?" exclaimed the host. "Why, he was supposed to stay with us tonight."

MYSTERY FANS

Along Wall street may be found perhaps the most avid readers of detective fiction.

Two-thirds of the books circulated by the Merchants Library branch which serves Wall street are mystery stories.

The library itself has an interesting history. It is 110 years old, having been founded November 9, 1820, by a band of merchants' clerks who met in a downtown coffee house when New York numbered a mere 123,000 souls.

The constitution provides that only merchants' clerks may vote and hold office in library affairs.

15 BILLS AFFECTING BADGER INDIANS ARE ON HOUSE CALENDAR

Six of These Measures Introduced by Congressman
Schneider

BY RUBY A. BLACK
(Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent)

Washington—Fifteen bills concerning Wisconsin Indians introduced by Wisconsin congressmen are before the session of Congress which convenes Monday.

Of these, six were introduced by Rep. George J. Schneider of Appleton, four by Rep. Hubert H. Peavey of Washburn, two by Rep. Edward E. Browne of Waupaca, two by Sen.
John J. Blaine of Escobedo, and one by Rep. John C. Schafer of Milwaukee.

One of Sen. Blaine's bills and two of Rep. Peavey's would provide aid for Indians who are blind or blind and deaf. The other Blaine bill would provide old age pensions for Indians 70 years old and older, the total of the Indian's income and pension not to exceed $20 a day, provided he is not in a public institution or has not committed a felony involving moral turpitude within 10 years. None of these bills have been reported from the committees to which they were referred.

Both of Rep. Browne's bills are for the Menominee Indians. One of them, authorizing the Menominees to employ general attorneys at a cost of $20,000, to look after their timber, power, and land resources, was supported by the bureau of Indian affairs and is on the house of representatives calendar. It failed of passage in the last session because it was blocked by Rep. Louis Cramton of Michigan and Rep. Thomas L. Blanton of Texas.

WOULD PERMIT SUIT

The other Browne bill would permit the Menominees to sue the United States in the court of claims for claims of the tribe against the government on account of alleged waste of their lumber. This is opposed by the bureau because Commissioner C.
J. Rhoads wants Congress to create a Court of Indian Claims to adjudicate all such matters. It was not reported and has practically no chance of passage during the coming short session.

The Schneider bill authorizing a survey to determine the feasibility of making a national park out of the six eastern townships of the Menominee reservation was passed by the house but remained buried in the Senate committee on Indian affairs, of which Sen. Robert M. La-Follette Jr. of Madison is a member.
The National Park service made a preliminary survey this summer, however, even though the bill was not passed.

Other Indian bills introduced by Rep. Schneider and never acted upon by the House Committee on Indian Affairs were:

A bill authorizing a $125,000 tuberculosis hospital for Indians in Porter county.

A bill authorizing payment of $100 to each member of the Menominee tribe out of money in the Treasury accrued to them;

A bill to establish the 3-hour day in the timber operations on the Menominee reservation, which was opposed by the Bureau of Indian Affairs;

A bill providing for compensation to public schools at Laona, Wabeno, and Stone Lake for teaching Indian children.

SCHNEIDER BILL

Rep. Schneider also has on the house calendar, favorably reported by the committee, a bill providing for a survey and enrollment, leading to the relief of the destitute members of the "lost band of the Chippewas" in Forest, Langlade, and Omequa counties. It is not held necessary to pass this bill, as an appropriation made at the end of the last session is understood to take care of these Indians.

Rep. Peavey has a bill authorizing a $175,000 Indian hospital in Sawyer, Ashland, or Bayfield counties, but it was never acted upon by the committee and is scarcely likely to be passed this session. His other Indian bill would permit enrollment of Chippewa Indians with the Chippewa tribe in Minnesota whether or not they live on the reservation.

Rep. Schafer's only measure concerned with Indian affairs is a resolution directing the Federal Power commission to withhold granting a license to develop water power sites on the Menominee reservation until Congress shall have approved such development of water power. It is not likely that any action will be taken on this resolution.

My Friends: Correct Your Eating Faults and Lose Your Fat with Kruschen Salts

Yes: I'm forty-five today — built like a race horse, my friends say — and I know I feel 10 years younger than I did three months ago and I'd hate to tell you how much fat I lost with Kruschen.

I call Kruschen Salts the "magic" salts because when I was fat and wretched, despondent and half sick all the time—it took only one bottle that I bought for 85 cents at Schlicht Eros. Co., 3 Stores, or Volgt's Drug Store to drive me up—put ambition and energy into me—made me feel years younger and with the help of a change in diet show me how to lose the fat I was so ashamed of.

Cut out pastries and desserts—go easy on potatoes, cream, cheese, and butter — eat lean meat, chicken, fish, vegetables and fruits and never fail to take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning.
Every drug store has Kruschen Salts
— a 5¢ box but I got 10 boxes weeks — not much to pay for my ant health.

Gored Skirt

The modishly cut gored skirt makes this model distinctly unusual. Incidentally the tapering movement of the upper edge of the gores in rounded outline is very slimming. It features the becoming cowl neckline that also minimizes the breadth through the bodice. The sleeve frills are pretty.

The original model in dark green crepe woolen with novel ring dots is perfectly stunning and wearable too. Style No. 2842 may be had in sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust.

Black canton-crepe with white accents in the sleeve frills and in the gaudie at the left shoulder is chic. Transparent velvet and crepe marocain are charming for this model.

Size 36 requires 4 1/2 yards 39-inch. Our large Fashion Book shows how to dress up to the minute at very little expense. It contains most attractive Paris designs for adults and children, embroidery, Xmas suggestions, etc.

The Story of Sue by MARGERY HALE

"THERE stood Harry" Corrinne repeated the words slowly as though she appreciated the effect they were having on her listener. Sarah leaned forward, more attentive.

"Harry's face wasn't red. It was worse. And his eyes were steely. But he didn't say anything. He just stood. The fellows hadn't noticed him. I didn't want them to think that I was afraid of my husband so I kept right on. I threw Harry a kiss, though and laughed and I thought he'd be game enough to see me through and then tell me what Adam told Eve, in private.

"But he wasn't. He just stood, until everyone had noticed him. Then he turned and left without saying one word. I felt like a postage stamp that had been used twice and caught the second time."

Corrinne's eyes were rebellious now and her cheeks flamed in remembered mortification.

"The boys exchanged looks and I could see they all felt sorry for me. It was worse than having your father call that it's time to go to bed!

"But that wasn't the worst. Harry actually sent the maid for me. Then I flamed! I grabbed my coat and hat and went off with the gang. They were feeling pretty sympathetic. I knew that they would tell it all over school and at first I almost backed down. Then I knew that they would talk anyway and that it would look as if I was just a set of quotation marks that copied Harry if I didn't go, so I went."

"Harry didn't say a word when I came home. He hasn't mentioned it at all. But yesterday.....I had another caller."

Now she smiled in remembrance. "There's a perfectly nice young teacher at the High School, who thinks that I won't know much more than the child widows of India if I don't learn a few more tricks of mathematics and Latin and he thought he could show me the way. His name is Max Gordon. He dropped in yesterday and I served tea and sandwiches. Honestly, I didn't know he was coming."

"And Harry came home. I tried to be real grown-up and get them acquainted. He's rather a nice sort.....but I knew that he had a whole lot more interest in my eyelashes than my grammar. No man ever puts himself out to help a girl get brains. Harry isn't so dumb, either. He knew it, too."

The dinner plates were being removed and the salad was brought in. Corrinne stopped and didn't speak again until the stuffed tomato, chilled to iceiness under its golden blanket, had disappeared from the nest of lettuce leaves.

"There! Now I'll go on. I just wanted a salad tonight. But there is adate pudding smothered in whipped cream that you'll have to eat. Harry had arrived, hadn't he? He was awfully nice to Max....I can't say Mister Gordon to him....and when he had gone I thought that everything would be all right. But it wasn't. Harry decided that two was a committee meeting and 16 or 18 were a convention and he liked majority rule better, after all. So he didn't show up tonight." She passed. "There's someone at the door now, isn't there?"

WE WOMEN

By Betty Brainerd

A MODERN PHARISEE!

"Dear Betty Brainerd: I am coming to you for your opinion of my character. I have a very complex nature. Sometimes I like to associate with people and other times any one bores me."

"Since I have been going to high school I have liked many for speaking acquaintances but do not care for their company. I make excellent grades at school and I know that is the reason so many would like to be intimate with me. There is one girl I really am devoted to. She is very popular and I know has many faults but I like everything she does. I don't think she likes me much. I conceal it."

"Because I am not going to marry. I never speak to boys and they never speak to me. I have never gone to a movie, and since I have been in high school, to no places of entertainment. Such things seem vanity. During the summer I scarcely see any one as I rarely leave my home. For my parents' sake I try to be agreeable. Indeed, some people think I have the nicest disposition they ever saw; others think I am an eccentric, timid and haughty girl. I am very fond of music and art. I have never taken lessons in either but I have learned to play and draw through every-day practice. Please tell me what my writing indicates."

I am unable to interpret your penmanship, but if its indication is similar to that of your letter itself the answer is: About face!—and as quickly as possible.

How have you been able to fool yourself so long that the bloodless existence you are leading is "living"? How have you been able to knock about blindly in your self-made cocoon when outside lay the sunshine and the whole beautiful world? How have you been young and never felt the stir of wings?

You have reached high school and have never yet found any one of whom you could, wholly approve! Those who seek your friendship you suspect of personal motives. Your solitude affords you plenty of time to think. Has it never occurred to you that the lack is not without you, but within?

"There is one girl I really am devoted to"—cling to that thought as a drowning man to a straw. You have cut yourself off from the very usages of humanity. You have determined never to marry. When all the world is holiday-making you remain behind, closed doors. You deny yourself the same relaxation of entertainment. You brood alone and give thanks, after the manner of one who lived in another age, that you are "not as other men."

Study the girl you mention and with all the efforts that is in you, observe her expressions and reactions with the utmost minuteness, and, until your own comatose sensibilities awaken, let them be your guide. Some day you may find you have wrought the miracle—that you have won the love of a human heart—and, coming forth from your prison, love! laugh! love!

Our Children

By Angelo Patri

COOPERATION

One of the difficulties in bringing up children is the fact that the neighbors have children too. The neighbor's children make things very complicated. They have different ideas about things, they use language that has a tinge of variety perhaps, they have more liberal training in some branches of social living, they go to different churches they are very different from our own. Yet there they are. You cannot get away from them. You cannot alter their training. The best thing to do is to accept their presence as inevitable and adjust yourself, and your children's training, to the situation.

Mothers can help each other a great deal. Suppose there are five little children all on the same block, or so, all attending the same school. Could one mother take the group and bring them back daily for a week, and then the next mother in turn, and so save time for all of them? Why not? Association with the other mother's children would broaden the outlook of all, and the children, too, would gather knowledge and experience very useful to them.

Then, too, where a group of children work and play together, there ought to be some sort of mutual understanding about the nature of their days. All school children should observe bedtime and rising hours religiously. If one family allows irregularity it immediately disturbs the whole group. "Why do I have to go to bed at eight? Helen doesn't." A mutual agreement on this will help everybody.

An associated group of mothers can do much to help the children in school. A neighborhood opinion will modify the school's attitude when individual opinion will not. Homework is something that ought to be carefully supervised by parents and teachers. If the teacher is thoughtless about assigning it one of two things happen: the children get meaningless work, or they are overloaded. A group of associated mothers can help the school to function for their children's good.

Of course this sort of cooperation is possible only where the mothers are intelligent and thoughtful. That sort of mother will reason: what is done for the good of one child in the neighborhood will help my child for no child can live uninfluenced by what happens to another. This will help my own child far more than it will help my neighbor's. And I would like to help my neighbor's child because that again will help me. And I would rather help my neighbor and live in harmony with her than otherwise.

Cooperation, service to each other that all may be served, has its basis in the best sort of selfishness. When we do our best for all we serve ourselves best. The time when each mother could bring up her child in isolation has gone by for we are conscious now of the interlocking of the interests of the group; neighbors, communities, state and nation can have no separate interests. Each is best served when all are finely served.

Mothers can help each other a great deal and so forward the growth of the children of the world.

SHIFTING BOOM HOTEL FINALLY SETTLES DOWN

Hobbs, N. M.—(AP)—The "wandering hotel" of the Permian basin now is more or less established in this new oil city, its fourth home.

The nomadic hostelry began life at Fort Stockton, Tex. From there its 40 rooms went to Big Springs, Tex.

The structure then moved to Poyote, Tex. After flush production was gone in the Poyote area, the inn was transferred to Hobbs, completing 300 miles of traveling. Now it has grown to 100 rooms.

Minot Lady Suffered Nine Years from Stomach and Liver Trouble, New Medicine Wins Again

MRS. ANNIE CLOTT

"Nine years ago I was told I had ulcers of the stomach," said Mrs. Annie Clott, 322 First avenue, N. W., Minot. "Although I followed a strict diet, I suffered from bloating and gas pains after meals. My liver was sluggish and I suffered from frequent severe headaches. I had frightful backaches and dizzy spells. I tried several medicines without benefit until a friend recommended Konjola. In four weeks Konjola so corrected my indigestion that I eat foods I dared not touch before. Other ailments vanished and a new feeling of health came over my entire system. I shall always praise Konjola."

Konjola, the new medicine, is recommended over a six to eight week period for ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Konjola is sold at Appleton, Wis., at Schlitz Bros. Drug Store, and at all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

SOME HINTS FOR KEEPING YOUR HANDS LOVELY

BY ALICIA HART

It is modern to do your own work. But is it not a bit smart to let your hands tell the world that you do.

Rough, red hands never get a woman anything but an inferiority complex. Why have them?

When you clean the house, prepare the vegetables, polish the metal work in the bathroom or even wash out your silken lingerie, wear rubber gloves. You can get them for 10 cents each, albeit more expensive ones may wear longer.

When you wash dishes, use a dish mop and a good, bland, white soap. The increased cost is negligible and anyhow, beauty should be worth a little something. Always use a wire mop to dig out stuck pots and pans. The thought of breaking your pretty nails at such a mean task should give you the shudders!

REMOVE STAINS QUICKLY

After the dish washing, what? A good soap and water scrubbing of your hands in tepid water, a thorough rinsing and some good hand lotion. You can even make your own mixing, fifty-fifty, rose water and glycerin. After you have dried your hands thoroughly, pour some of this lotion into the palm of your hand and rub every bit of it into your hands by the gentle, wringing motion described in hand massage.

If you get any of those little stains on your fingers that it is so hard to avoid when doing housework, don't sit down until you have removed them. Keep a slice of lemon at your side or a bottle of peroxide. Rubbing lemon over the stains and lemon and salt if they are especially bad, will remove most household stains. Peroxide does the same thing.

After you have used lemon, or any other bleach, be sure to use a hand cream. For any bleaching is apt to be an astringent and likely to leave your hands a bit dry and parched. A good hand cream remedies this, and relaxes the skin in a comfortable way.

AIDS TO HAND BEAUTY

There are many hand-savers you should notice, if you have that vanity every woman needs to make her 100 per cent attractive. Long handled dusters will save the hands. Long handled forks and spoons for cooking will keep them far enough away from the heat to protect them from their searing. Kitchen holders always should be used to lift pots, pans, or take off covers. That way the steam from inside will not redden your hands.

Least but not least comes the indoor glove habit. When you rest in the afternoon, why not wear some gloves after massaging your hands? You will be surprised how much softer your hands will be after a week of loving care. Plenty of lotion at the sink, every stain removed upon eight, massage morning and night with a good hand cream, and then gloves to top the treatment.

TOMORROW: Treatment of red hands.

VOCATIONAL SCHOOL MENTOR COMPLETES ROOSEVELT SKETCH

A charcoal pencil drawing of ex-President Theodore Roosevelt, completed on Thanksgiving Day by James Chadek, head of the woodworking department of Appleton vocational school, is on display in the office of Herb Hellig, director.

The drawing is an almost perfect replica of an original photograph of the late president and was completed in a few hours by Mr. Chadek.

Mr. Chadek has long been known as an expert sculptor and capable brush and pencil artist. Many of his accomplishments are to be seen in the woodworking department of the school.

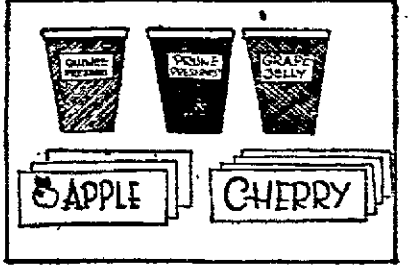

They include wood carvings, plaster busts, paintings, and pencil sketches. Two busts completed by the instructor are on display in the main corridor of the school.

Mr. Hellig is completing negotiations for placing the Roosevelt drawing and other of Mr. Chadek's works on display at one of the state art exhibits.

Have You Heard —

Children love to make Christmas presents for their mamas, it someone only will tell them what to do.

Printing jelly and preserve labels on ordinary white stickers is on little thing they can do and which will be useful and acceptable when done.

Get a couple of dozen white stickers, preferably without color around the edges. Let the children print the word, "Cherry," "Apple" or "Quince" on different ones and in different colored crayon, ink or paint.

If the children are especially active, you might suggest that they draw a tiny picture of the fruit they write the labels for, such as a little red apple on the stickers for apple jelly, or a cherry for cherry preserves.

Not only mother, but Aunt Jane, the neighbors, grandma or anyone who keeps house would find these little labels useful when preserving time comes again. And the cost is so little it is entirely negligible.

DEPRESSION IS FELT BY POOR DEPARTMENT

The depression showed its head in the poor department expenditures for the month of October, when the poor and unemployed cost the city $2,189.23, compared to $1,518.99 in September and $1,790.75 in August. Credits received by W. L. Lyons, poor commissioner, during October totalling $215.90, making the actual cost of October $1,973.33. Fifty-eight families in the city and 20 inmates of the City Home received portions of this amount.

Board for indigents cost $114, rent $330, fuel $197.50, meats $50.75, and groceries $414.18. Of the latter amount $306.70 was expended in outside aid and $107.48 to feed the 20 inmates of the City Home. Potatoes cost $70. Sick bills were again one of the large items of the month, $137.85 being paid out in hospital bills, $10.00 for hospital expenses, $123.46 for drugs, $125 for nursing.

New roofing on the barn of the city home cost $147 and extra help at the city home $75.30.

NEENAH TAX RATE FOR 1931 IS SET AT $28 PER $1,000

$644,730 to Be Spent in Next Year, According to Budget

Neenah—A resolution fixing the 1931 tax rate at $28 a $1,000 was adopted by the common council Wednesday night. The committee on fire department and parks and public building were authorized to receive tentative plans and specifications for a new building for the fire department and remodeling of the city hall. The council also decided to refer to the voters the proposal to collect garbage at the cost of the city an "considered circulation of petitions proposing an annual appropriation for commercial and industrial development."

The 1931 budget, as recommended by the finance committee and the city clerk, shows estimated expenditures at $644,730.18 with revenues, including taxes of $447,782.41 and miscellaneous receipts of $196,947.77.

In the estimated expenditures the school bonds fund totals $15,752.35, with taxes of the same amount; water works, $49,935.76, with taxes of $9,891.22; vocational education, $19,935.03, taxes, $15,392.03, and $13,120.00 miscellaneous receipts; city school tax, estimated expenditures, $186,710.06, taxes, $148,040.06 and miscellaneous receipts, $38,670.00; library, $8,686.78, with tax, the same and no miscellaneous receipts; sewer, $60,829.28, taxes, $48,658.40, with $12,620.88 miscellaneous receipts; street lighting, estimated expenditures, $15,992.23, taxes the same without any miscellaneous receipts; poor, estimated expenditures, $9,339.17, taxes the same; street, highway and bridges, estimated expenditures, $45,886.28 with taxes of $42,632.26 and $3,254.02 miscellaneous receipts; and general fund, estimated expenditures, $232,088.95, with taxes of $102,286.80 with miscellaneous receipts of $129,802.65.

INCLUDES COUNTY TAX

The general fund includes county taxes. The amount raised for school bonds is for interest only, according to the city clerk's report. The first sum, $23,000 for principal, will be raised in the tax roll next year. The amount for the water department is all for outlay, as operating costs come from receipts from water revenues. The funds raised by taxation contemplate installation of new mains on Mayer, Maple, Law and Grove streets and the Lowden-bird feeder main extending from Grove street across Commercial-st and north on Henry-st to Ellen-st. The erection of a new 500,000 gallon steel storage tank at a cost of $37,000 also is made possible.

The vocational education, city school and library budgets are approximately the same as last year. The sewer amount provides $800 for maintenance and the balance to cover the cost of the Ladd-ave sewer and pump station, island storm sewers, Lincoln-st outlet, Hazel, Law, Mayer and Maple-st extensions and the retaining wall to cost $60,040.25. The poor covers only additional necessary because of the unemployment situation.

The street, highway and bridge budget provides in addition to operating expenses, graveling streets, $5,500; street signs, $2,500; new curbs, $300; Adams-st bridge repair, $500; heating plant at foot house, $1,600; snow plow, $400; and opening Ladd-ave, $2,800, making a total of $12,200.

The general fund provides in addition to regular operating expenses, election equipment, $200; traffic control, $200; fire department, $300; new park at foot house, $3,000; playground equipment, $1,774.19; other outlays at parks, $1,150; unclassified, $8,683.80; and cemetery including water and $5,500, making a total of $18,759.49.

The amount can further be apportioned, according to the report, as follows: school bonds, $15,752.35; vocational education and city school tax, $164,432.09; library, $8,682.79; county and state taxes, $105,100.65; outlay, city, $116,137.13; operating expenses, city, $38,663.11, and contingent fund (excess), $3,633.30, making a total of $447,782.41.

MAY BUILD FIRE HOUSE

Although the erection of a new building east of the city hall to accommodate the fire department, was not included in the budget, a motion presented by Alderman Aylward, was unanimously passed authorizing a joint committee composed of members of the fire and the parks and public building committees, to receive tentative plans for such a building. At the same time it will secure plans and specifications for a remodeling of the city hall.

Establishment of a general garbage collection system to be paid out of the general taxes, will be decided at the April election. Another matter to be voted on then will be an annual appropriation of a sum not to exceed $2,000 for commercial and industrial development in the city and for encouraging the location of more industrial and commercial plants here. Petitions will be necessary to place the question upon the ballot.

ADOPT NEW ORDINANCE

The new zoning ordinance, covering 25 typewritten pages, which was read at the November meeting was adopted and will go into effect following its publication. A few minor changes were made by the planning commission and the addition of a sliding fee to be charged for building permits and inspections made.

Changes in the city home in which dependents are quartered in order to accommodate another family, were authorized on motion of Mrs. Stuart. She also moved that the reading of the city's poor be dispensed with at the council meetings.

Among the ordinances presented was one to repeal the prohibition

TREASURER POINTS OUT HOW TAXES ARE SPENT

Neenah—In dividing the city's budget for the coming year, the city treasurer has drawn the several amounts into a percentage basis in which the general fund takes 29.5 per cent, street, highway and bridge needs, 15.2; vocational budget, 3.5; schools, 34.7; library, 1.8; street lighting, 3.6; poor, 1.8; water works, 6.4; sewers, 1.5 and school bond, 2.2.

DIVIDE FIRST WARD INTO TWO PRECINCTS

Oak-st, Running North and South, Is Selected for Dividing Line

Neenah—The First ward will be divided into two precincts, the common council decided Wednesday. The wards population has reached 1,953, which is too much for one election board, it was claimed. The ward will be divided at Oak-st, which runs north and south. All voters residing east of the center line of the dividing street will vote in the first precinct, and all on the west side of the street will vote in the second precinct. This will necessitate two voting places and the addition of extra help at elections. While both precincts will vote at the city hall as usual, the second precinct will vote where the Second ward voters have been casting their ballots for the past 30 years. The Second ward voting place has been removed to the Boy Brigade building immediately across the street from the city hall. Heretofore Second ward voters voted at the city hall, which is in the First ward. The change will permit Second warders to vote in their own ward. With 1,351 voters casting ballots, the board of election clerks was busy at some elections until as late as 5 and 6 o'clock the following morning counting the ballots.

The decision to operate only the more frequently patronized rinks was made to cooperate with the common council in working within the limits of the 1931 budget. There has been $12,424.72 allotted to the park board for operation during the year.

RINK MAINTENANCE TO DEPEND ON PATRONAGE

Menasha—Maintenance of skating rinks during the winter will depend entirely upon their patronage, according to Vernon Gruper, park superintendent. In order to operate at the minimum of expense, only the rinks used most extensively will be continued through the season.

The rink on Little Lake Butte des Morts has been completed and is ready for use. Children are cautioned not to go beyond the stakes and into the danger zone, but to remain within the borders established by park board employees. Other rinks, constructed in parks and playgrounds, will be ready within a short time.

The decision to operate only the more frequently patronized rinks was made to cooperate with the common council in working within the limits of the 1931 budget. There has been $12,424.72 allotted to the park board for operation during the year.

Committee of the Whole to Complete Arrangements at Special Meeting

Repair work on the bridge was authorized at Tuesday's council meeting following a recommendation by the board of public works. An appropriation of $12,000 to cover the cost of the work has been incorporated in the 1931 budget and labor will be secured from among Menasha residents exclusively.

The plans submitted by the Milwaukee construction company provided for removal of the heavy concrete surface of the bridge and substitution of cross-timbers. All necessary reinforcement of piling and strungers is included in the plan and further work will be unnecessary for about 20 years, it is believed.

RADIO PROPERTY RIGHTS DEPEND ON RULING OF COURT

Hundreds of Millions of Dollars at Stake in Battle With Commission

BY ROBERT MACK
Copyright, 1930, By Cons. Press
Washington — (CPA) — Radio's legal frontier bristles these days with unprecedented activity, with the hundreds of millions of dollars invested in broadcasting stations hanging on the outcome of a case to be heard by the supreme court before the week is out.

The very constitutionality of the radio law itself is at stake in the supreme court arguments when radio hits the high spot of jurisprudence. Two cases, involving the all-important question of property rights of radio stations will be argued probably on Friday, both hailing from Chicago—the nation's nerve-center of broadcasting.

Leading up to this climax in radio law, the court of appeals here, sitting as the super radio commission, heard arguments Tuesday on the controverted cleared channel shift which the commission had essayed, and which was stopped in its tracks by court injunctions. Monday, this court handed down two decisions on appeals, both sustaining commission denials of applications. In one case, involving the denial of the W. O. Ansley, Jr. application for a new station at Abilene, Tex., commission won a relishing victory, since it was fraught with acrimonious exchanges between the commission and two of its former legal counsel.

COURT ISSUES REBUTT

While the court sustained the commission in the two opinions it delivered, a stinging rebuttal to that agency during the oral arguments on the cleared channel shift. This allocation, ordered last summer, was to affect 26 stations, operating on 13 of the 40 cleared channels, and ostensibly was designed to eliminate cross-talk so harassing to listeners admittedly caused by lack of geographical separation for the frequency, or "ether" separation, between high powered stations. The shift was ordered without according the stations involved preliminary hearings, and half a dozen of them marched into the courts with their grievances and out again with injunctions or restraining orders.

It was on this score that the court disciplined the commission. During oral arguments on the appeal of station WHAS, as Louisville, Ky. one of the stations involved in the shuffle, Chief Justice George E. Martin, interrupted to say that the commission most certainly had erred in not scheduling a hearing. The other two justices of the court, Joseph A. Van Orsdel and Charles H. Robb, agreed that stations, with their large investments in broadcasting, could not be shifted about like pawns in a chess game without prior hearing.

For the commission, Duke M. Patrick, assistant general counsel, admitted that it had made a mistake but that it had corrected itself later by scheduling hearings and postponing the shift. The court, however, indicated that this theory was all wrong and held that the appeals were perfected before this subsequent action. Arguments along the same general lines were heard on the appeal of station WHAS of Rochester, N. Y. with former assistant attorney general William A. Donovan, appearing for the appellants. Swager Shirley appeared for the Louisville station.

The supreme court cases, which have aroused peak interest in radio circles because of their all-embracing importance, were certified by the federal district court in Chicago. They are the cases of station WMBE-WOK of the American Bond and Mortgage Co., and station WCRW, owned by C. R. White, both having to do with commission actions.

The big question is whether a broadcasting station, by operating on a particular wavelength over a long period of time, acquires a vested or property right to it. The commission says not, and no other court has passed on the question finally, leaving it for the nation's highest tribunal to answer.

The appellants contend that the government must reimburse the broadcasters for "deprivation of property" if the fifth amendment to the constitution is to be complied with.

Hundreds of millions of dollars in investments in broadcasting stations may ultimately be involved in this case, because the decision of the court may affect the security of the stations' assignments to particular channels, and along with it, their huge investments in equipment and program contracts.

Describe Marvels Of New Gigantic X-Ray Machines

Los Angeles — (AP) — Wonders of new and powerful X-ray machines whose potentialities are unfathomed even by their creators are being unfolded here before scientists attending the convention of the Radiological Society of North America.

The greatness of these machines—an X-ray tube of 650,000 volts, said to produce more than 50 times as much power as all the radium known to exist—was exhibited before the scientists last night at Pasadena by Dr. Robert A. Millikan, noted physicist.

This tube produces rays approximating in length those of the penetrating gamma ray of radium, and hence, in some respects is capable of doing work now done by the $5,000,000,000 worth of radium which the world thus far has yielded.

Dr. Millikan and Dr. C. C. Lauritson, both of California Institute of Technology, developed the big tube. Its potentialities in the fields of medicine, physics and engineering, the noted scientist said, were undetermined and might require years for discovery.

Development of the tube, Dr. Millikan said, opened three principal fields of research—a physical study of the properties of the gamma ray, research into the nature of metals and other opaque substances, and the study of the X-ray's effect upon plant and animal tissue.

The latter field, he said, would determine whether the big tube would produce rays containing the curative properties of the ordinary X-ray and of radium, and whether it could be used in the treatment of cancer and other diseases.

Dr. Charles Packard of the Columbia University School of Cancer Research, arrived last night and announced he would spend the winter studying the X-ray tube's effect upon living tissues. He said he would expose fruit fly eggs to the rays and later under a microscope count the number of eggs dying from exposure to the rays.

With this and other experiments Dr. Packard said he hoped to furnish the medical world with enough data to determine the giant tube's probable effect upon human tissues.

Larry Mullins Unable To Play Against Southern Cal

SECOND FULLBACK LOST TO ROCKNE SQUAD THIS FALL

Knee Injured in Army Game Has Failed to Respond to Treatments

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—The task of filling fullback Larry Mullins, whose knee was injured in the Army game last week, had not responded to treatment, Coach Knute Rockne's worries today as he marshalled out his Notre Dame Rough Riders for their final workouts for the invasion of the University of Southern California.

Rockne yesterday revealed that Mullins would not be able to play against the Trojans because his knee, badly wrenched in the Army game last week, had not responded to treatment. The loss of Mullins, who replaced "Gallop" Joe Savol, at when the latter was dismissed from school for his venture into matrimony, was a sad blow to Notre Dame's hopes of victory.

Dan Hanley, who jumped into a certain amount of fame during the Drake game, and Al Howard, a member of the "shock troop" squad, were drilled to replace Mullins. Both substitutes have considerable latent ability but with the big game only three days away, Rockne was worried.

"It makes the outlook darker than I had feared," Rockne said. "Mullins was a great defensive player in addition to his great ability to carry the ball and we'll miss him."

Any and everybody were afforded a welcome to watch the Rough Riders go through their first drill on the University of Arizona field yesterday but today's practices were secret. A light scrimmage was on the program and spirits were high despite the loss of Mullins.

Rockne has been harried by requests to appear at banquets and to give speeches along the route. Last night he said he would gladly speak at every station if only the enthusiastic fans permitted his players to rest.

After today's workouts, one in the morning and other in the afternoon, the Notre Dame squad planned to hop aboard its special train for the final journey to Los Angeles, arriving there Friday. "Fighting Irish" planned a short workout on the Trojan field to limber up.

KIMBERLY QUINTET MEETS PULASKI

Veteran Squad Gives Red Devils Hopes for Little Nine Title

Kimberly—Coach Harper's Red Devil cagers from Kimberly high school will play their first conference game at the clubhouse Friday evening. The opponents will be the strong Pulaski high school team, winners of the inter-sectional tournament staged last year at Pulaski. The two teams are considered the best in this section of the Little Nine conference and the game should be very close with plenty of team work by both teams.

The Red Devils have been out every day this week and Coach Harper has left no stone unturned in working his regulars. The big problem which the Kimberly mentor has to solve is the poor showing of his squad at finding the hoop. All during the week the boys have been pegging away at the hoop until they were cross eyed.

The starting choice of Coach Harper will probably be Captain "Buck" Le May and Hoffman at forwards, Leonard Montie at center, and Schwanke and Alberts at the guard posts.

A last preliminary will precede the major game. The reorganized Lefty's Aces will perform against their rivals from across the river, the Little Chute Merchants.

SAN FRANCISCO OPEN ATTRACTS GOLFERS

San Francisco (AP)—Leading professional and amateur golfers prepared to tee off today in 36 hole qualifying tests to determine the 32 survivors for the San Francisco open match play tournament, which ends next Sunday.

The 72-hole event, worth $7,500 to the pros, with trophies for the winning amateurs, attracted 153 entries. Of this number, 133 were professionals, including Tommy Armour, Gene Sarazen, Leo Diegel, Horton Smith and George V. Elin, former national amateur title holder, now a "business man golfer."

Outstanding amateurs were H. Chandler Egan of Medford, Ore., two times winner of the national crown; Fay Coleman, Los Angeles, and Jack Neville, Pebble Beach.

First prize for the pros was $1,500 with $1,000 for the runner-up.

IRISH PLAY TO FEWER FANS THAN LAST YEAR

South Bend, Ind. (AP)—Notre Dame's all-conquering football team of 1930 will fall short by about 25,000 in its ability to attract fans as compared with last year's eleven.

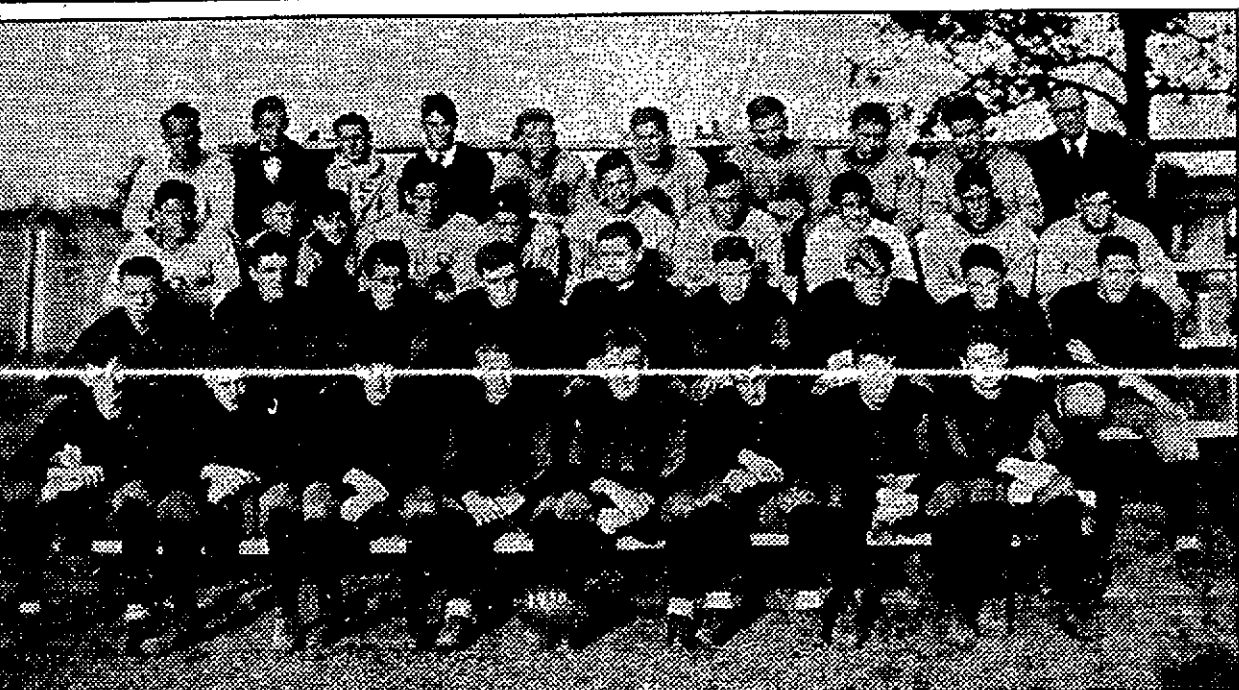

Although the "fighting Irish" will have helped pack five stadiums, including that at the University of Southern California next Saturday, they haven't attracted very large crowds at their new home stadium.

Counting Saturday's promised crowd of approximately 90,000 fans, this year's team will have attracted about $25,000. Last year's "road" team played before $45,000.

Notre Dame More Than A Mere Football Team

BY LAWRENCE PERRY
Copyright 1930

NEW YORK (CPA)—The consistent success of Notre Dame football eleven has had the inevitable result of causing the institution to be represented to stand distorted in the popular view. Its chief product, as the public sees it, is football.

Certainly football is the most spectacular output of this university at South Bend. And so, since popular attitudes are almost invariably based upon superficial elements, football at Notre Dame is generally held to be the sum as it is the end of endeavor at this seat of learning.

Now very shortly a member of the staff of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Learning will visit Notre Dame in connection with the supplementary bulletin to bulletin 23, covering conduct of intercollegiate sport in the United States, which will be issued, it is expected, next February. It is quite likely that among the features of this bulletin will be a discerning appraisal of the curriculum at Notre Dame. Scholastic conditions which students athletes included—must meet, as well as an adequate evaluation of the prevailing educational tone of the university. The result should bring about a readjustment of the popular conception of Notre Dame.

ENTRANCE REQUIREMENTS
For there does exist in this seat of learning a very definite scholastic tone and here may be found a real contribution to the cause of education.

Many Publications
You go into the library and look over the literary work they are doing here: The Santa Maria, a quarterly; the Scrip, a periodical devoted to fiction and essays; the Notre Dame lawyer, published monthly by the students in law; The American Midland Naturalist, bi-monthly, devoted to natural history; the review of the creative states; The Ave Maria, a religious weekly; the Notre Dame Scholastic, a weekly review; The Notre Dame Alumnus; and many periodical pamphlets, surveys. A busy press they have at Notre Dame as busy and as earnest as the football system.

Of the teachers one-third are priests and the other two-thirds, laymen. It has always been the policy at Notre Dame to have a large representation of laymen in the teaching corps but the present percentage would not be so big were more priests ordained every year. About one-fifth of these lay teachers are non-Catholic; the college of science, for instance, has six. Protestants. And of the total student enrollment of 3,100, eight per cent is non-Catholic. In the past five years at least six non-Catholic ministers have attended classes at the university.

Notre Dame, its two lovely little lakes, its majestic trees, its campus and its attractive buildings—here is the spot to which on Nov. 25 1932, came the very Rev. Edward Sorin with seven brother priests of the Holy Cross and said, "This is the place." They had fought their way through ice and snow, through forest and wild from Vincennes, having left the mother house at Mans in France on Aug. 5, 1841, to found a college in Indiana.

The story of this migration is more fascinating than most novels and the annals of the founding and upbuilding of Notre Dame involve a saga of thrill and personal heroism that makes Knute Rockne seem a minor figure.

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For this purpose, there is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any drugist, get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. First, it loosens the germ-laden phlegm. Second, it soothes away the inflammation. Third, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in the obstinate bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

MORRISSEY NAMED HEAD OF KIWANIS

Chilton Aggregation Holds Annual Meeting—Dr. Minahan Is Speaker

Chilton—The annual meeting of the Chilton Kiwanis club was held at Hotel Chilton on Tuesday evening. The following officers were elected: President, C. M. Morrissey; vice president, George Goggins; and treasurer, Robert Hugo. The secretary will be elected by the board of directors sometime during the coming week.

The main feature of the program was a paper read by Dr. John Minahan, who took for his subject "The History of Medical Progress." After giving a brief review of medical advance in ancient, medieval and modern times, up to a century ago, he confined his address to an account of the advances made in the medical field within the past 50 years. The progress in the field of biology, chemistry and surgery has been so far reaching that no one can predict the scope of scientific progress in medical science, Dr. Minahan declared.

John Buhl, 68, died at his home in the town of Charleston Sunday Tuesday night. He had been well up to within a few minutes before his death, when he suffered a stroke of apoplexy. CITY IS PREPARED FOR SNOW REMOVAL; EQUIPMENT FIXED

Little Trouble Anticipated in Keeping Streets Open This Winter

Kaukauna—Kaukauna is well prepared for the removal of snow from streets this winter, according to Thomas Reardon and Joseph Kuehn, commissioners of the north and south road districts. The snow removing equipment was repaired last week.

The cost for removal of snow last winter was small and traffic was hindered only for short periods after storms. The streets in the business districts were always opened early in the morning and the streets in the residential districts were cleared soon after.

Little trouble in removing the snow is expected this winter, the commissioners stated. Snow fighting equipment consists of a tractor, plow, grader and several small plows for sidewalks. The city also has two large trucks on which plows can be attached in case of severe storms.

The county has stationed one huge truck here with a snow plow so that the federal and state highways can be opened immediately in this vicinity after storms. Contracts also have been made to have the trunk lines in the vicinity of the city cleared by private concerns. Extra men will be added to the city crews to haul away the accumulated snow in the streets in the business district.

MARKETING BY CO-OPS ADVOCATED BY GWIN

Madison—(P)—Cooperative marketing and advertising on a large scale was advocated by James Gwin, home marketing specialist of the state department of agriculture here today before the Wisconsin Beekeepers' association.

The lack of cooperative marketing and advertising is at present having a bad effect on the consumption of the state's $2,000,000 honey crop, Mr. Gwin said. "At the present time a great deal of Wisconsin's honey crop is dumped on the market within 90 days after it is taken from the hive," Mr. Gwin said. "This means that the prices go down at the flush season and rise again during the off season."

"Small group marketing is useless because that only means that hundreds of small cooperatives are all in the market at the same time bidding against each other."

CHERRY GROWERS WARNED TO SPRAY FOR CASE BEARER

Failure to Heed Warning Apt to Result in Heavy Losses

BY W. F. WINSEY

Sturgeon Bay—The cherry industry may lose thousands of dollars in sale of cherries next year if growers fail to spray their trees with oil emulsion to control the case bearer pest, a new arrival in Cherry Land quite firmly located in the orchards nearest to this city. The Door County Fruit Growers' Union will refuse to accept any cherries next year from a grower that carries case bearers. In Michigan cherries infected with case bearers last summer were removed from warehouse, piled in the yard, saturated with oil and burned by federal officers. Not only must every orchard man in the infected district of Door-co spray his trees with oil emulsion, but small, abandoned orchards will be either sprayed or uprooted and cleared away. If the spraying is done at the right time and in the right way the case bearer is killed and very little damage need be done to branches of the cherry trees. In preference to small sections, cherry growers in the infected area will spray their entire orchards.

At the present time the case bearer is confined to a small area near this city and as far as is known has not spread to orchards to the north and south. Next spring a group of University fruit specialists directed, perhaps, by Dr. C. L. Fluke of the University will make a survey of the Door-co orchards to determine the location and extent of the area infected with the case bearer. A map of the survey will be very serviceable to all cherry growers. Next spring demonstrations of spraying with oil emulsion and the most serviceable equipment will be conducted at central points in the county so convenient that all orchard men may attend one or more of them and become acquainted with the best methods.

The above is a summary of facts brought out in an informal discussion of case control following talks of the regular speakers at a convention of 200 Door-co fruit growers assembled in the courthouse here, Monday afternoon. The meeting was a part of the second annual Door-co farmers' week program arranged by County Agent B. F. Rusy who presided at the convention. The regular speakers and subjects were: S. Bailey, "New Oils for Spraying;" Dr. A. A. Granovsky, "Developments in Oil Spraying;" C. E. Dutton, "Illustrated Talks on Sprays for Cherries;" and Dr. C. L. Fluke, "Summary of Recommendations of Oil for 1931." In the informal discussions that followed the regular talks everybody took a hand, told what he had done in the way of spraying, estimated the results attained, and made good resolutions for next spring.

FUNDS TURNED DOWN FOR GUARD STATION

Appropriations Committee Refuses Schneider's Plea for $35,000

BY RUBY A. BLACK

Post-Crescent Wash. Corps. Washington—The Appropriations committee of the House of Representatives rejected the plea of Rep. George J. Schneider for funds to start work on the $35,000 Coast Guard station for Strawberry Passage in Green Bay, which has been authorized by law since 1922.

The committee reported to the House Wednesday the Treasury and Post Office departments appropriation bill for the fiscal year 1931, beginning next July 1, containing appropriations for the Coast Guard, and made no provision for the Strawberry Passage station.

The only new stations for which funds were provided are the $80,000 station in the vicinity of Grand Island, Mich., and the $33,000 station near Port Oxford, Ore.

Rep. Schneider appeared before the Committee on Appropriations to argue for the station as a means of saving life and property in this greatly used waterway. It is expected that Sen. John J. Blaine of Boscombe will again offer an amendment providing the appropriation when the bill gets to the Senate. He did so last year and the Senate passed his amendment but the House refused to agree to it.

How to Deal with Soft, Spongy Gums

Combat Two Things—Tartar and Germs—to Prevent Serious Trouble

Tartar forming on the teeth keeps growing and growing down into the gums until it literally separates the gums from the teeth. Inflammation is set up in the gums which is further aggravated by the collection of germs in the sore tissue. Then you have a dangerous condition which may cause loss of teeth and, through this, may ruin your health. Be wary of any unfavorable gum condition. See your dentist regularly. In the meantime, follow this simple regime. Brush your teeth faithfully every day and in the right way. Brush the upper teeth downward and the lower upward. Rinse your mouth thoroughly morning and evening with a solution of one part of Extol and three parts water. Following this, massage gums gently with your finger. Be sure you use the Extol as it is absolutely necessary to kill the germs.

Reach the Hidden Germs! Extol is the amazing new antiseptic mouth wash and throat gargle you have dismissed everywhere to date. It is of revolutionary germicidal and penetrative powers. It kills germs faster than any mouth wash heretofore known—so fast it is called the "10-second germicide." It is so highly germicidal that diluted even 1 to 3 it is more effective than any ordinary mouth wash used straight. Also, and equally important, it is extremely penetrating! An antiseptic, to be effective, must be able to penetrate the folds and crevices in the mouth and throat; also the spaces between the teeth. Extol reaches the outer layer of the mucosa. That is what Extol does—it penetrates through to these hidden germs that ordinary mouth washes miss.

Harmless to Tissue Delightful to Taste

Extol is a harmless to tissue and most delightful in taste and sensation. And it not only kills less than most mouth washes, but is more economical to use, because you have to use so little at a time. All McKesson-Schulz Dispensaries and all independent drug stores carry Extol. Get a bottle today and keep your mouth, throat and tonsils in the clean, white condition that health of mouth and throat demands. Note the name, EXTOL—A McKesson-Schulz product. Adv.

PROHIBITION NOT SO BAD IN SPITE OF MANY REPORTS

So Says Dry League Publicist in Organization's 1930 Yearbook

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington—As various national dry organizations prepare for their big conventions here, the Anti-Saloon League comes to bat with a 1930 yearbook calculated to show that prohibition has been rather successful despite all the things some people have been saying about it.

This is the product of Ernest H. Cherrington, the league's big education and publicity man, who every day pushes out about a ton of dry literature from the organization's big presses at Westerville, O.

Mr. Cherrington admits prohibition today isn't a pleasant picture. But, says he, think of the old pre-prohibition days when there were 200,000 saloons and probably half as many speak-easies, when annual consumption of liquor was 60,000,000 gallons of whiskey, 60,000,000 gallons of wine and about 2,000,000,000 gallons of beer.

Average annual per capita beer consumption in big cities was two and a half barrels, he says, and the average annual drink bill was probably more than $3,000,000,000. Women and girls were drinking "alarmingly" 20 years ago. Drunkenness was commonplace on streets and in public places. The liquor traffic flouted law and built up corrupt political machines.

SAYS FIGURES MISLEAD
"If this nation today were consuming as much as even the amount of legal liquors consumed before national prohibition and that were to be transported by automobiles, each automobile in the nation would need to transport more than 100 gallons," Dr. Cherrington says. There used to be an estimated 20,000,000 adult drinkers, he adds, and if they were "all living and still unreformed," Dr. Cherrington doesn't see how the drinking drinkers could possibly be drinking more than 13 per cent of their former 1937 gallons a year.

Reports for 1928 showed that only one person in every 1600 was arrested by federal prohibition officers, it is pointed out and figures showing many still seized are apt to be misleading because many are small stills with a capacity of but a few gallons.

People don't die from poisoned liquor, but rather from pure alcohol, says Dr. Cherrington, citing evidence that victims of alcoholism are killed by the same ethyl or grain alcohol which used to kill them in pre-prohibition days.

Tables are presented to show that in 1925, whereas 106 persons per 10,000 population were arrested for drunkenness in Toronto in 1925 and 51 in Montreal, only 14.83 persons were arrested for it in wet New York City.

LAWBREAKERS IN MINORITY
"The violations of the prohibition law," says the dry leader, "while more numerous than we might wish, are not sufficiently so as to seriously affect any of the gains made possible by this national policy. These violations are exceptions to the rule. They are committed by a small minority of the American people."

The doctor suggests some codification of the liquor laws, complaining that judges and prosecutors are often "deplorably lacking" in detailed knowledge of the federal statutes. Uniform prohibition legislation in the various states would be unquestionable value, Cherrington says, and if that is unattainable a national conference of governors or attorney generals to attempt some degree of law harmony might be worth consideration.

Cherrington cites President Hoover himself as saying that "the dry law has proved its worth in dollars and cents" and quotes Roger Babson, Henry Ford, the late E. H. Gary, Thomas T. Edison and many others to prove its economic benefits. Most of the former $3,000,000,000 drink bill is now saved or spent constructively, he contends.

DEATH RATE LOWER
The increase in total life insurance in force was 70 billion dollars in the first decade of prohibition. Members of building loan associations increased from 4,000,000 to 12,000,000 and their assets from less than two billion dollars to more than eight billion.

The death rate dropped abruptly with the coming of prohibition, Dr. Cherrington says, claiming that nearly 200,000 persons would have died annually in the last 10 years had the conditions prevailing in the license period been continued. Figures are presented to show an actual decrease in deaths from alcoholism.

ARREST 7 VIOLATORS OF STATE GAME LAWS

Seven Outagamie-co men were arrested and charged with violation of state game laws during October, according to a report recently issued by the state conservation commission. Five of the men are from Kaukauna, one is from Kimberly and one is from Black Creek.

Minard Grunevald, Black Creek, was charged with trapping without a license and fined $50 and costs; John Vanalphen, Kimberly, was charged with hunting and possession of rabbits in closed season and also paid a fine of $50 and costs.

The cases of the Kaukauna men were reported as held open. Frank Nushardt was charged with trapping without a license; Robert Nushardt, with possession of furbearing animals in closed season; Milton Rabidiah, possession of fur bearing animals in closed season; Roman Reichel, trapping without a license; Carl Simpson, trapping and possession of muskrat and skunk in closed season.

All the arrests were made by Game Warden Louis Jeske of Appleton.

able by this national policy. These violations are exceptions to the rule. They are committed by a small minority of the American people."

The doctor suggests some codification of the liquor laws, complaining that judges and prosecutors are often "deplorably lacking" in detailed knowledge of the federal statutes. Uniform prohibition legislation in the various states would be unquestionable value, Cherrington says, and if that is unattainable a national conference of governors or attorney generals to attempt some degree of law harmony might be worth consideration.

Cherrington cites President Hoover himself as saying that "the dry law has proved its worth in dollars and cents" and quotes Roger Babson, Henry Ford, the late E. H. Gary, Thomas T. Edison and many others to prove its economic benefits. Most of the former $3,000,000,000 drink bill is now saved or spent constructively, he contends.

FARMERS MAY GET RADIO CIRCULARS

Copies of Bulletins Will Be Sent on Request by Gus Sell

For Outagamie-co farmers to get a radio station by mail may sound like another new invention, but it really is just another service that the Wisconsin college of agriculture is offering in connection with its radio station WHA, according to County Agent Gus Sell.

Radio talks, on special farm and home topics, which farmers have requested be sent to them in printed form, are now prepared as radio circulars, ready to be mailed to those who were unable to tune-in on the station or to those who wish a memorandum of the information for future use.

In addition to these circulars, there are over 125 other farm topics printed in bulletin form which are available for distribution, according to Miss Adelaide Kleinheinz, in charge of the bulletin mailing service. Nearly 150 separate requests are received daily for one or more of these bulletins. Approximately a half of a million copies of farm and home bulletins are required annually to supply these requests.

With the approach of winter with its long evenings for reading, many farmers request bulletins dealing with subjects on which some time for consideration and planning are desired. Plans for water systems or for sewage disposal on the farm; the feeding of livestock or poultry, as well as ways of preparing appetizing

MAYOR ADVISES LANDLORDS TO HAVE PATIENCE

Landlords who have tenants that cannot pay their rent, real estate dealers who intend to foreclose mortgages, and attorneys loaded with garnishee summonses are asked by Mayor John Goodland Jr. to bury any unfavorable intentions for the time being in the cases of unemployed families. In making this suggestion Mayor Goodland is guided by the action of the citizens' unemployment committee.

"The unemployment committee feels," Arthur Thompson, secretary of the citizens' committee says, "that it is as reasonable to ask a landlord not to evict a temporarily jobless tenant as it is to ask credit for groceries."

The plan will be presented to organized bodies, individual landlords, and real estate agents by the citizens committee.

foods for the family, fall in this group.

"Cutting the Cost of Feeding Cows" is the name of a new bulletin just printed and it deals largely with the present feed situation. "Conducting the Business Meeting" helps those who preside over farm club and other gatherings, while "Cheese factory statements Made Easy" make it easy to understand factory statements.

A list of the names of the radio circulars or other bulletins, the county agent states, can be obtained from the Wisconsin college of agriculture, Madison, or direct from his office.

ANNOUNCE RESULTS OF SOILS SURVEY

During the fiscal year 1930, the Bureau published reports of soil surveys in Monroe County, Pierce County, and Calumet County, Wis.

New York — Policemen may be hard-boiled, but when it comes to a case like the following, they show plenty of charity. Mrs. Mary Coates showed up with her three children and begged for food. She said that all the family had had to eat for days was a bottle of milk. The police captain appealed to the force at the station and they dug down and produced $11.80. Mrs. Coates broke into tears as she accepted the money.

INVITE CHAMBER MEMBERS TO CANAL MEET AT OSHKOSH

Mayors and Chambers Along Route of Proposed Waterway to Attend

A letter inviting the chamber of commerce to attend a meeting of the Oshkosh chamber next Tuesday was received here Wednesday from Edward P. Smith, secretary of the Oshkosh organization. Representatives of cities along the proposed Green Bay to Mississippi waterway are expected to attend.

An effort is to be made at the conference to effect a permanent organization and elect officers. A name also will be selected for the proposed organization. The Oshkosh group has suggested that the group be called the Fox-Wisconsin Waterways association.

"Town and village presidents, mayors, secretaries and officials of chambers of commerce and all others interested in the nine-foot barge canal proposition are eligible to attend the meeting," Mr. Smith said.

"It is imperative that a goodly representation attend as the officers to be chosen will have a huge task ahead of them which may require from five to eight or even 10 years of study and work before such a canal would be an actual reality."

MORE— agomic. CHIEF. THT. TT. A committee of five men, named at a recent meeting in Oshkosh, will report at the Tuesday session. The report will add others present to adopt a form of organization, select a name and decide just how many officers to select and how many shall comprise the executive committee, it was pointed out.

Sol Kingsbaker and Alan H. Tripp, Oshkosh; R. F. Mallia, secretary of the association of commerce at Green Bay; W. B. Dalton of the Nekeosa-Edwards Paper company, and R. E. Seaton, secretary of the Portage chamber comprise the committee.

elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. COLUMBIA SYSTEM TAKES UPPERCUT IN TELEVISION PLANS

Examiner Recommends Against Granting Permit for Experiments

BY ROBERT MACK
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press
Washington—A slashing blow at the Columbia broadcasting system's plan to inject competition into television development has been delivered from within the federal radio commission, and is likely to have its repercussions in congress.

Recommendation against the immediate granting of Columbia's request for an experimental television station in New York on the ground that it would simply be a duplication of experiments of the National Broadcasting company, Columbia's chief competitor in network broadcasting, was made by Examiner Elmer W. Pratt. It brought forth an immediate and vindictive rejoinder from Harry C. Butcher, Columbia's Washington director, as being contrary to the American principle of free and unrestricted competition.

Pratt had no quarrel with Columbia's "financial ability" to carry on television experiments in the air, but he did contest its technical qualifications. While the intent of competition is good, Pratt states that Columbia proposes to use equipment manufactured by a sister company of the N. B. C., to use its engineers, and to base its television experiments "upon the data developed wholly through research conducted by a competing company."

SEES DUPLICATION
N. B. C. already has an experimental television station in New York, he says. The proposed Columbia station, which would be used to observe phenomena of visual transmission, would be located in close proximity to N. B. C.'s existing station, and would be but a duplication of these experiments, he holds.

Columbia competes with N. B. C., Pratt says. N. B. C. is affiliated with the R. C. A. organization, which has approximately five television transmitters "capable of testing the results of apparatus developed" by them," he states. Yet Columbia, with its vast experience in network broadcasting, has no experimental television station, and wants to get in on the ground floor when the visual art becomes susceptible to general application in public service.

Specifically, Pratt states that Columbia has had no actual experience in television, and that M. A. Trainer, R. C. A. Victor television engineer has been assigned to direct its work. R. C. A. Victor equipment would be used, and Columbia "will rely entirely on the research work heretofore done by R. C. A. Victor Corporation, a competitor," he asserts.

RECOMMENDS RESEARCH
Pratt therefore recommends that Columbia be given six months within which to make a showing of substantial research work in television conducted on an independent basis. At the end of six months he suggests that another hearing be held before him and that if such a showing is made the application be granted.

DOMESTIC AIRMAIL TO COST U. S. 20 BILLION

Washington—(AP)—The fast domestic airmail service will cost the government $20,000,000 in the next fiscal year. In addition, the annual postoffice supply bill, reported Wednesday to the house, provided $7,000,000 for foreign airmail service.

This was an increase of $5,000,000 over the outlay for domestic airmail during the current year. Assistant Postmaster General Glover told the house appropriations committee, in hearings made public today, that there would be a deficit of about $4,500,000 in the current operating fund of $15,000,000. He indicated another deficit for the next 12 months.

LARGER SUM IN SIGHT FOR TWO U. S. BUREAUS

Washington—(AP)—Two new offshoots of the government enforcement tree—the industrial alcohol and narcotics bureaus—will get half a million more with which to function next fiscal year than when they were merely sprouting on the prohibition limb.

They were separated last summer with the transfer of prohibition enforcement from the treasury to the justice department. To the continued growth of the alcohol branch the house appropriations committee today allotted $4,314,420 as compared with $4,338,740 last year, to narcotics $1,705,523 against $1,661,260. Before the committee approved these sums, it heard testimony from the heads of each branch reciting accomplishments and aims.

ed, but if not, that it be denied flatly.

Butcher takes a different view. In a scathing statement, he emphasized that the recommendation was not the commission's final judgment and that the report must be acted upon by the full body. It is expected, he states, that "proper consideration will be given to the factor of strong competition that the Columbia system wishes to bring into television development, just as it has brought competition into network broadcasting."

The threat that it might be forced to use foreign television apparatus if its application is denied was made by the Columbia official. Saying that Columbia had investigated apparatus of various developers, he adds that it wishes to begin its experimental work with the best available equipment. Columbia cannot accept the intimation, he asserts, that it cannot contribute materially to television simply because it is not the primary developer or manufacturer of the basic apparatus.

MAY SHELVE WORLD COURT ISSUE DURING SESSION

Washington—(AP)—Senate leaders see no change for disposition of the controversial world court issue at this session as they await the protocol from President Hoover.

Negotiations are under way looking to a postponement of the question by the foreign relations committee until a year hence, although

Chairman Borah has said he would refuse to accept responsibility for such a delay.

"I most certainly am opposed to injecting the world court into this short session," Senator Watson, the Republican leader, reiterated today.

"Above else I want to dispose of the emergency domestic problems confronting us and do this without the necessity of an extra session in the spring. We can't complete that program and take up the world court too."

REPORTER ATTEMPTS TO KILL BERENGUER

Madrid—(AP)—A newspaper reporter, gathered with other correspondents in the office of Premier Berenguer, Wednesday drew a pistol as the premier entered and fired at him. The bullet went wild and the reporter was overpowered by guards. Berenguer was not injured. The reporter, a man named Joaquin Llugo, represented the newspaper El Sol of Madrid. He was hustled away in the custody of the police.

STATE WELCOMES NEW ARCHBISHOP THROUGH KOHLER

Expresses Hope That Churchman's Life Will Be Happy in Wisconsin

Milwaukee —(P)— The people of Wisconsin, through their governor, Walter J. Kohler, last night officially welcomed Archbishop Samuel Alphonsus Stritch to Milwaukee and the state.

"It was nearly 300 years ago that Father Jacques Marquette and his contemporaries of the Catholic faith first touched the shores of what is now Wisconsin," Gov. Kohler said. "We hope you will like Wisconsin, the state we love, whose natural beauty charms all and whose people are hardworking, thrifty and law lives of deep devotion. Traveling on foot or in frail bark canoes in a primeval country, practicing a wilderness, they bore with cheerfulness and sublime fortitude the terrible privations and sufferings attendant upon the difficult and hazardous journey among a strange and oft-times hostile people.

"Their high faith as well as their fine courage and unswerving purpose in the face of almost incredible difficulties and peril, as disclosed in their writings, will always be a source of inspiration to the citizens of this state and nation."

"From that day to this the people of Catholic belief have contributed much to the constructive progress and the material development of our state."

The governor paid a tribute to the memory of the late Archbishop Sebastian Messmer, the new archbishop's predecessor. He was a learned man, beloved by countless thousands, the governor said.

Toyland Reflects Changes In Life Of Adult World

Chicago—(P)— Every phase of progress from miniature golf to improvements in refrigeration is mirrored in toys this year.

Toyland, said the buyer in one large department store today, is adult life in the miniature, and it is becoming more so.

For example, keeping up the doll's appearance has advanced from the white dress and blue sash stage to an extensive wardrobe including pink silk stepsons, party frocks, sweaters, raincoats, hats. The doll shoe departments are showing sport and dress patterns just like those of the little owner.

Styles in dolls themselves have changed. The golden-haired expressionless doll that closed its eyes when laid down on its back and said "Mama" if punched in the right section of its anatomy, has given way to dolls that look like live little boys, girls and babies.

Furnishing a doll house makes interior decorators out of the parents, for in purchasing they are confronted with all sizes of furniture the entire array of which resembles a miniature furniture store.

The doll house can be completely furnished down to the sponge in the bathroom and not overlooking the clock on the kitchen wall.

Modernism may get by with a bang in interior decorating, skyscrapers and poetry, but when it comes to toys, the youngsters of today want them to look natural.

They want their stuffed animals—dogs, teddy bears, monkeys—as much as ever, but they want their wire haired fox terriers to look like the real article and not like modernistic canine decorations on the latest thing in ash trays.

Boys like action toys, but the miniature automobile that gets attention makes them think of daddy's car. When they play war with toy cannon they want some realistic noise. They marvel at the modern toy locomotive which is only a distant relation of the mechanical choo-choo of 1900. The last word in aviation has its echo on the toy counter.

Miniature golf sets varying in size from one that could be placed on a door mat to one requiring a good sized back yard, are at the latest fad in "fore." Backgam-mon sets are prominent among the games, puzzles and paint boxes.

But old Dobbin is being ground out of the toy market by the modern wagon or dray, the type of horse drawn vehicle the modern youngster most frequently sees. There are some rocking horses but most of the ponies are on wheels.

DAGGER by Mary Dahlberg

CHAPTER 30 INTO FORBIDDEN PLACES

GIPT tempted Dagger. She would have liked to wander amongst its antiquities, to ascend the Nile and continue overland by safari into the alpine fastnesses of the Mountains of the Moon.

But the venture extended no prospect of achievement; it could do no more than furnish an outlet for her restlessness. So she contented herself with a brief visit to Cairo and two weeks later boarded a P. & O. liner for Bombay.

Long before the Red Sea had been traversed she was known through the ship as the American girl who'd lived with the Senussi, and she learned that from the passengers much that was valuable about India - even something about the man she intended to visit.

"What? Ghulam Buk?" said a District Commissioner from up Jullundur way. "Of course, I know him - or of him, rather. Everyone does. He's a bit of a saint, one of the healthiest influences in India. A very remarkable old chap, doesn't believe in much of anything that we do, doesn't like Westernism; but holds out against violence and that sort of thing. Abbot of the Gelugpa Monastery in Lahore, has a lot to say about what the Buddhists do - that is, the pure, uncontaminated Buddhists."

"Old Ghulam Buk's lot are the real thing, followers of the Way. See him? I should think you'd have difficulty. But then you seem to be able to do things, Mrs. Vanering. No harm in having a try, anyhow."

"This only served to promote Dagger's impatience. She could scarcely wait for the steamer to reach Bombay and alas for the Gateway of India, she left it overnight. But she was unable to resist the bizarre fascination of the teeming life of the Central Provinces as revealed from her car-window."

Never in a single forty-two hours of travel had she seen so many human beings. They swarmed about the stations like grubs; wherever the land was visible, villages showed through the foliage, innumerable children raced beside the tracks.

The cities were equally strange, baroque, unkempt, each one huge slum. She received an impression of the utter cheapness of human life. There was no trace of the native dignity of the desert folk; and at times she was profoundly depressed.

But nothing could quench her growing excitement as the train steamed north. She lay awake at night waiting for the domes and minarets of Lahore, a city lover far, she soon decided, than any other she had judged by fleeting impression.

At the hotel she explained her wishes, as soon as she had bathed and changed her clothes, to a deferential Babbar clerk, who was quite put out by her intention.

"Yes, truly, Madame must have competent guide," he said in his clipped, singsong English, spoken with the painful accuracy of one who rehearsed it all in his mind; "but it is not customary for Buddhist priest to receive foreign lady in monastery. I doubt its success attends Madame's effort."

"You may leave that to me," Dagger answered curtly. "Secure me the guide and I'll do the rest."

The guide, a suave Bengali, was equally discouraging; but perfectly willing to carry out his employer's instructions and procure a motor for the journey across the city to the monastery, which was situated in the oldest quarter. Sitting back with teeth clenched and frowning brow, Dagger had no eyes for the colorful pagantry of the streets. She looked straight ahead at the hollowed back of the Sikh chauffeur and the rotund form of the Bengali. Immersed in thought, she was surprised when the car stopped.

"This is Gelugpa Lemassary, what you say Monastery, Madam," the guide announced. "Most holy place in North India for those Buddhists, who are not emancipate of religious faith. Very superstitious people."

He was loquacious. "Wholly ignorant of modern science, believing in miracles, like people who have not advantage of universities. Now I, who am M. A., Calcutta--"

"Thank you, Ram Das," Dagger interrupted, despite her impatience secretly amused, "but I am most interested at the moment in learning something of those superstitions. How do we get in?"

"We ring bell," he said. "Lama come. I think he say no." Crossing the pavement he jerked at a rope hanging from a hole in the intel, and a bell clanged harshly within. Immediately a panel slid back in the gateway, and a dark, lined face peered out at them. Ram Das bowed very low - he seemed to retain respect for holy people, whatever his thought of their ideas - and spoke in a low tone. The monk cut him off at once, sternly emphatic, and when Ram Das would have continued, ejaculated one short phrase, and started to close the panel. Dagger, herself, stepped forward.

"I am Blaine's Howard's friend," she said quickly in English, without thinking how ridiculous it was to expect the monk to understand her. And indeed, he did not; but he delayed in closing the panel, and cast a curious glance over her flushed features.

"He say why you want to see Ghulam Buk. Ghulam Buk varies holy man, not have time for women."

"Tell him - here, let me write it down on a piece of paper."

And she scribbled on the back of an envelope:

"For Ghulam Buk: Blaine Howard used to talk to me of you. May I not talk with you of him? I am in trouble for lack of wisdom. Alexandria Vanering."

"The monk accepted it from her, turning it in his hand not suspiciously, but as if in doubt. He looked at her again, nodded his head, and barked a sentence at the guide, who rubbed his hands together unctuously as the panel clicked shut.

"Priest say: please you wait, Madame. He take paper to Ghulam Buk."

Dagger climbed back into the car with a feeling of entire relief. A voice out of nothingness had whispered in her ear: "You shall succeed." And so it was. Half an hour passed, and the gate itself creaked open. The monk reappeared, bowing low, hands folded in the wide sleeves of his yellow robe. Ram Das, leaping expectantly from his seat beside the driver, interpreted the invitation:

"He say: please you come with him, Madame. Your servant -" he touched his chest - "unfortunately not to go. Ghulam Buk speaks English."

If Dagger had known India better she would have been surprised by the cleanliness of the halls and corridors she traversed, but she did not have to know India to appreciate the atmosphere of peace which enveloped her so soon as she had crossed the monastery's threshold. The place was unbelievably quiet. The occasional monks she encountered moved like specters rather than men, their bare feet soundless, their heads bent in reflection, their yellow robes fluttering with a suggestion of massiveness.

But the quietness and calm did not account for the feel of the place. That, she understood, must be a psychic reaction from some kindred force secluded within these walls. Whatever it was, it soothed her nerves and stilled any lingering urge for haste. Haste? She smiled to herself. Here was infinity.

Her guide led her across a hall where a statue of the Buddha loomed dimly in the twilight, and up a flight of stairs, their broad, low treads worn satin-smooth. On this upper floor they stopped at a door of teakwood, and the monk knocked upon it with an excess of humility which warned Dagger she had reached the goal of her desire. A voice responded from within, a voice which made her think of the tinkle of silver bells, inexpressibly remote. The monk stood back with a gesture inviting her to enter. (Copyright, 1930, Duffield and Company)

What awaits Dagger in this mysterious sanctum of Ghulam Buk? Follow her strange interview with him in tomorrow's chapter.

HYDE SCORES SUBSIDIES IN FARM REPORT

Indefinite Storing of Surpluses No Solution to Price Problem, He Says

Washington (AP)—Cutting through the maze of political and economic theories of farm relief Secretary Hyde's annual report for the department of agriculture went to the president today with a full statement of policy on controversial issues.

Probably the most outstanding point, because of its bearing on the export debenture—now the chief concern of farm legislation—was the secretary's criticism of "subsidies."

Hyde did not mention the debenture by name, but opponents of the plan charged it is a subsidy and pointed to Hyde's declaration that subsidies would increase rather than restrain production.

While denied by the debenture's friends, the accusation has been made that it would result in the dumping of American products abroad and create foreign retaliation. Hyde said the dumping of surpluses abroad was not feasible and recited world resistance to low-priced Russian wheat.

NO SPECIFIC REFERENCE

Touching close to the farm board's retirement of 110,000,000 bushels of wheat from the market, Hyde said without specific reference that the indefinite storing of surpluses tends to prevent rather than to cause a rise of prices.

"By this time," the secretary said, "it is evident that supply and demand conditions cannot be set aside by legislation."

The secretary proposed voluntary curtailment of production as the only logical remedy for the surplus problem.

"The answer to overproduction is less production," he said. "Many farmers think production cannot be controlled by controlling areas, since output also depends on the weather and on insect pests and plant diseases."

PRODUCTION UNIFORM

"Locally this is true. But taking the country as a whole production per acre is surprisingly uniform. In the last 25 years the average yield of wheat per acre has been 14.5 bushels. In the long run man rather than nature controls the volume of farm production."

Elimination of high-cost acres was the keynote to his curtailment of acreage plan.

"Everywhere," he said, "the general principal of the readjustment process should be the same. In each region or locality it would transfer the highest-cost acres to other uses and thus tend to reduce average costs of production. This obviously would be an advantage in world competition."

"NOT CONTRADICTION"

"Action taken to control the volume of production cannot save the consistently high-cost producer. He must either get out or accept a low standard of living."

"Increasing efficiency is not in contradiction with the need for reducing production. Sometimes it is accompanied by increased output, but that is not an inevitable relationship. Efficiency should reduce costs of production while organization regulates the total volume. These two principles, far from being antagonistic, are the twin pillars of agricultural prosperity."

URGES UNITED ACTION

Farm credit conditions drew from the secretary the conclusion that if the supply as to be adequate and the cost low, farmers and bankers must unite in action to lessen the hazards of the agricultural industry.

On land utilization, a subject of bitter controversy, the secretary said the national reclamation policy should be reconciled with the need of restricting farm production.

Hyde said that although agriculture benefited by the 1930 tariff revision, tariff duties are not effective on commodities produced largely for export.

States Encourage Land Owners To Grow Forests

BY WILLIAM MAUTHE
Chairman, Conservation Commission, State of Wisconsin

With an eye to the needs of citizens of today and tomorrow, several states, including the Lake States, Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin, have been experimenting with forest crop tax laws.

While we have not passed the experimental stage, definite forward steps have been taken; definite results have been attained. The future is bright for the development of forest resources through education of landowners and the public at large through enactment of new laws and amendment of existing law, and through efficient administration of these laws.

Before the new laws needed can be secured the public must be sold on the idea that the demand for forest crop tax laws did not come from the owners of timberlands, but from counties facing bankruptcy; the public must learn the truth, that these laws are the result of relentless pressure of economic conditions.

Unproductive land cannot pay taxes, unless it has a speculative value. Land which is producing nothing will revert sooner or later to the county within which it is located.

No longer is there any appreciable speculative value in the cutover barrens of the Lake States. Not even the most optimistic hold to the belief that this land can be absorbed into agriculture. The present economic trend in agriculture all over the country is toward concentration on the better lands and the abandonment of the marginal lands.

It is fairly clear to all who have studied the subject that the only uses to which this land can be put is timber-growing and recreation. Naturally only a small fraction of the immense acreage can be used for recreation.

To meet the initial requirement that the public must favor or be sold on the forest tax laws, it is of supreme importance that any proposed law should be readily understandable. Public and landowners must know the provisions of the law as well as the necessity for it; they must be able to understand those provisions and how they are to be administered; they must understand what is expected of the law in the way of benefits, and it is well if they know the pitfalls and possibilities of error on the part of those administering it.

As states counties, cities and towns cooperate with owners of forest lands, the public, watching this work, will grow more and more forestry conscious, making possible longer and longer steps in the direction of forest productivity.

I believe we are about ready to provide for general registration of forest land. All lands of certain description should come automatically under the operation of the forest tax laws. This already is a feature of a recent Oregon law.

Stated so bluntly, this sounds like a radical, revolutionary proposal. Let us look at the proposal in the light of what may develop from proper administration of the present optional law. Wisconsin has an automatic workmen's compensation act. In the beginning the law was optional, employers elected to come under the law or not, as they thought best.

The optional law worked well from the outset. Then the law was made automatic without a ripple of complaint, and it has continued to operate with general satisfaction.

Much the same thing may happen in the case of the forest crop tax laws. If they work as well at first indications lead us to believe; if they are properly administered, then there is no reason why they should not come to be almost universally effective by general acceptance. Then they can be made automatic, bringing in the last struggle when there is no longer any reason to doubt.

Perhaps there might be an intermediate step, a period during which the state authorities would be charged with the duty of examining forest development if either is to be effective; it must extend beyond mere expenditure of money. It must include measures of safety to be taken by lumbermen, landowners, public utilities, the state and the federal government.

Encouraging forest development is a federal as well as a state problem. It is discouraging and unfair that property tax burdens should be shifted by the state while the federal income tax burden upon forest practices remains to clog our progress.

Federal income laws require that expenditures for plantings and improving forest lands must be accounted for as capital invested. These charges are not deductible as annual expense against annual income, but forest crop expenditures must wait for deductions until the crop is cut. The interest cost of advancing money for forest crop production has no standing with federal income tax authorities. Forest crop producers are not even allowed to count interest charges as operating expense.

Wisconsin's income tax law cuts this entire tangle of complication by allowing expenditures for planting, protecting and improving forest crops as operating expenses. This is a much wiser policy than the federal insistence upon penalizing the practice of forestry. If as we claim, forestry should be an integral part of the business of primary wood-working, then certainly the federal law should be so amended that such industries may deduct their annual forest operating expense from annual income just as any other non-avoidable expense is deducted.

This is a matter of plain justice, but even were this not true, even if such an amendment were discriminatory in favor of woodworking industries, we still would have grounds upon which to demand such relief.

The forest resources of the Lake States, the northwest, and the south are not the resources of the state alone; they are the resources of the nation, important to the economic welfare, health and happiness of all the people of America, a nation

LIVESTOCK SHOW AT ITS CLIMAX AT ANNUAL AUCTION

Stockmen Watch Sale of Carload Lots at Chicago Exposition

Chicago—(AP)—Today the nation's grand parade of agriculture at the International Livestock exposition progressed to the final and most important stage of farming—it went to market.

Beginning at 9 o'clock with the auction of the grand champion steer, always a climax to the show, the best meat materials in the world went on the block to set values upon excellence, for the enlightenment, guidance and inspiration of stock raisers the world around.

The prices which the grand champion steers brought in the sales of 1928 and 1929, when the bidders made the economists and market experts gasp, were largely attributed to the coincidence that the boys who owned "Lucky Strike" and "Dick" the champions for those years, were 4-H boys and the steers their pets in the club feeding contests. The effect of youngsters leading the show sent the prices soaring to $7, 8 pound in 1928 and $8.25 in 1929, netting in each case a return of approximately $5,000 each to Clarence Goecke and Elliott Brown, both of Iowa, the respective owners.

Previously the highest price paid had been $3.60 in 1926 for the steer owned by the Oklahoma A. and M. college.

It is the sale of the carload lots, however, which the stockmen eye most closely. These are strictly commercial price sales. In 1929 the 50 car lots sold for an average price of $18.50 a hundred. Nearly half of a carload lot of carloads, was purchased by eight of the country's leading railroads.

Sarah Ann Tolan, 15-year-old 4-H club girl of Sangamon-co, Illinois, whose Angus steer won the grand championship of the junior feeding contest this year, announced yesterday that she would give half the proceeds of the sale of her steer to charity.

The middle west took most of the purple ribbons in the judging yesterday, which was confined to breeding stock and horses, respectively. West Virginia landed the only grand championship for the east with the Hereford cow of C. A. Smith of Chester, J. Nickel and Sons of Arden, Ill., showed the grand champion Berkshire boar and E. B. Moore of Sheridan, Ind., the grand champion sow. I. L. Rudasill and Sons of Moline, Mo., exhibited the grand champion Chester White boar, and Albert H. Stuart of Newell, La., the grand champion sow. The grand champion Hereford bull owned by H. J. Pluck, Goodenov, La.

In the horse divisions, the grand championship of Belgian stallions went to an entry of Charles T. and Sons, Kirby, Ohio; the grand champion shire stallion is owned by Trumans' Pioneer Stud farm, Bushnell, Ill.

POLICEMEN FOUND 96 DOORS OPEN IN MONTH

Police Chief George T. Prim, who has repeatedly warned merchants and store owners to be more careful about locking doors and windows in their establishments at night, reiterated his warning again this week when a checkup showed that patrolmen had found 96 doors open during November. This is an average of more than three doors every day, the chief said, and is evidence of the carelessness of merchants. Open doors, he said, breeds petty thefts and the number of crimes and thefts in Appleton can be reduced only when merchants cooperate with the police department, the chief said.

RAILROADS REACH ANOTHER DEADLOCK IN CONSOLIDATION

Conferences, Going on for Past Month, Adjourned Indefinitely

BY CHARLES F. SPEARE

Special to Post-Crescent
Wall Street, New York — (CPA)—
It became known today that the efforts of four eastern railroads to bring a harmonious relationship and to adopt a plan of trunk line consolidation which they could present for approval to the interstate commerce commission had reached a deadlock. Conferences have been going on for the past month. At the last meeting a few days ago it was decided to adjourn indefinitely.

There is still the possibility that the jarring interests in this situation may be brought together. Bankers for the different roads are now trying to work out a solution of the problems that are uppermost in this controversy.

At one time it seemed probable that the four roads, namely Pennsylvania, New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio and the Nickel Plate system, would be willing to make concessions to each other which would permit the four party plan to become effective. Strong pressure had been brought to bear on the railroad executives by financial interests that have been identified with their securities for many years.

The unsatisfactory condition of railroad generally and the loss of public confidence in railroad stocks placed upon the different railroad managements an obligation to work out a program that would help to restore the faith of investors in the carriers. It is not now believed that the case is hopeless. It is compared abroad while the Young plan was in the making and when it seemed likely that no agreement could be reached between the different nations participating in it. Eventually, however, a successful conclusion of these negotiations was effected.

The chief points of issue in the railroad dispute center around the control by the Pennsylvania of the Lehigh Valley, the demand of the New York Central for the Delaware,

Lackawanna and Western, and the Pennsylvania's long sought line in the Lake Erie territory. The proposal that the Lehigh valley should be administered jointly by the four roads is said to have been made but was unwelcome to the Pennsylvania railroad which feels that it should be allowed to retain and exclusively operate this carrier. Not so much of a problem is believed to surround the Pennsylvania's control of the Wabash.

Ohio in this situation has been less active than that of its three com-

Study Man-Eating Sharks In Disease Prevention Fight

Singapore, Strait Settlements.—(CP)

A strange race of man-eating sharks living in fresh water has been found near here by Dr. Homer W. Smith,
New York, university physiologist.

This fish promises to throw light on some obscure points about human kidneys and thereby give science another grip on disease prevention.

"At Teluk Anson, on the Perak river, which flows into the straits of Malacca on the west coast of Malaya," Dr. Smith said, "we found rays, sharks and saw-fish in perfectly fresh water 40 miles from the sea."

"We set up a laboratory under a palm-leaf roof to keep off the terrain."

mission, steadily developed the plan of consolidation toward which it has been working for some years. The only missing link in its chain of roads bringing it to tidewater is the Reading-Central of Jersey, which is yet to be secured. It is understood to have about a 40 per cent stock interest in the Reading. The interstate commerce commission plan of consolidation allocated this road to the Baltimore and Ohio.

Wall Street has placed a great deal of confidence in the successful outcome of the negotiations between the trunk line systems and today refused to believe that the case was a hopeless one, feeling that there is such an urgent demand for a cordial entente being established that it will eventually be brought about either through banking influence or by some other outside leadership.

le sun, and settled down to do some very exact scientific work.

"We were able to keep the fish until we wanted to use them in live-cars in the river. The natives use these live-cars frequently to transport live fish to market, thus making up for the absence of ice."

"The Chinese know this trick and ship large quantities of young carp to Singapore by aerating the water with paddles, these are made to slap the water by a mechanical device activated by coolies running on a treadmill in shifts day and night."

"We did not ourselves get any very large fish, but man-eating sharks weighing up to 100 pounds are said to come up the river sometimes. There are a few records of sharks and saw-fish, which are closely related, going up river 200 miles from the sea."

"This migration into fresh water occurs for some unknown reason only in the tropical rivers of the equatorial belt, the vast majority of this group of fish being strictly marine."

"The immigration is the more interesting because some paleontolo-gists think the group as a whole lived exclusively in the fresh waters of the Silurian continents (that is, 400 million years ago) and moved into the ocean in the subsequent Devonian period."

"Our particular interest in them is in the presence of large quantities of urea in their blood, a substance which is formed by the combination of protein in the body, and which in all other animals is immediately excreted by the kidneys.

"We are working on the theory that this uremia, as it is called when it occurs as a result of kidney disease in man, is in these fishes an adaptation which is necessary for them to live in salt water."

"It is hoped that a study of this may throw light upon obscure points regarding the function of the human kidney."

From here Prof. Smith goes to Batavia for study of rare fishes and thence to Africa to take back to New York line lung-fish, direct descendants of Devonian lung-fish of 400 million years ago. He is making the expedition with the aid of the John Simon Guggenheim foundation.
